HOOVER CONFERS WITH LEADERS ON AID BILL REVISION

Progress Toward Reaching Accord Is Reported After Conference; Discussions Resume Today.

HOUSE WILL DELAY ACTION, PENDING PARLEY'S DECISION

White House, in Statement Afterward, Says Conferees Were Generally Disposed to Meet President's Objections.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Moving to salvage a constructive Federal relief measure from the hurly-burly of political haymaking on Capitol Hill, President Hoover invited sixteen leaders of the House and Senate to meet with him at the White House last night in an effort to iron out the conflicts in the $2,300,000,000 Wagner-Garner bill.

Although no conclusive agreement was reached in the two-and-a-half-hour conference, members of both the House and Senate indicated afterward that progress had been made toward revision of the bill along lines acceptable to all.

A subcommittee of the congressional group will resume negotiations at the White House at 9 o'clock this morning, and, pending outcome of that meeting, the conference report on the measure, which was scheduled for consideration in the House today, will be passed over.

Progress on Program Is Made.

Confirming the informal expressions from both sides that headway had been made toward an acceptable relief program, the White House announced after the conference that there had been a general discussion of the President's objections to the bill in its present form "and a general disposition to meet them."

Confronted by a certain presidential veto of the measure as it now stands, leaders in both parties veered to a compromise in principle last night, but were unable to agree on final language.

A tentative basis for compromise on the $300,000,000 direct relief fund was found in a program which would follow closely the President's suggestion that Federal aid be apportioned on the basis of need rather than on the basis of population.

A meeting ground of the two conflicting programs for Federal construction also was tentatively accepted.

Direct Loans Carried Over.

On the third issue, involving direct loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to individuals who have no credit resources, the President held tenaciously to the view that such a loan would be in fact, a dole, and that point went over to today's conference.

Spokesmen for the Senate today will be Senators Robinson, Wagner and Norbeck. Speaker Garner and the two leaders, Rainey and Snell, will represent the House.

In announcing the "general disposition" to meet the President's objections to the present bill, the White House issued the following statement after last night's discussion:

"At a conference with leaders of the Senate and House the President stated his objections to the form of the relief bill as it now stands. There was general discussion of these objections and a general disposition to meet them and to reach a compromise agreement acceptable to all.

"In an effort to arrive at a definite conclusion it was agreed that a subcommittee should meet with the President tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock."

Garner Is Reticent.

Speaker Garner declined to comment on the conference as he left the President's office in the executive wing last night, but acknowledged that the compromise negotiations would continue today.

Representative Crisp, of Georgia, chairman of the House conferees, told

HYDE SCORES TREE PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

Claim of Work for 1,000,000 Men Is Ridiculed by Secretary.

Arthur M. Hyde, of Missouri, the Secretary of Agriculture, pinched one of Franklin D. Roosevelt's prize political pomegranates yesterday and pronounced it a bit soft. Mr. Hyde acknowledged that America needs more trees, as Mr. Roosevelt advocated in his acceptance address before the Chicago convention last Saturday, but he took issue with the Democratic presidential candidate on the suggestion that an adequate reforestation program would provide immediate employment for "1,000,000 men."

Such an army, Mr. Hyde said, could plant 1,000,000,000 trees in a single day, which is about four times as many seedling trees as are to be found in all the nurseries in the United States. It requires three

Oklahomans Evacuated After Rains Swell River

Oklahoma City, July 5 (U.P.).—Fed by rains of cloudburst proportions in central and western Oklahoma, the North Canadian River overflowed tonight in the lowlands here. Three hundred persons were removed by police and sheriff's deputies from the bottoms. They were lodged for the night in the Exchange Avenue Baptist Church.

More than 2 inches of rain had fallen here, and the storm was continuing at 11 o'clock tonight. The Washita River at Pauls Valley was rapidly rising. Two inches of rain had fallen there.

Manila (Wednesday), July 6 (A.P.).—After five months guard duty in battle-scarred Shanghai without casualties, the Thirty-first United States Infantry returned here today to meet with an accident that injured four enlisted men.

As approximately 1,200 officers and men were disembarking from the transport Republic, an insecure gangplank slipped and fell about 50 feet. One enlisted man received a broken leg in the fall.

G.O.P. TO TEST DEMOCRATS ON BEER MEASURE

ADVERSE STAND SEEN AS FUEL IN CAMPAIGN

Senator Says Repeal Plank of Roosevelt Party on Trial in Congress.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The present uproar in Congress for real beer threatens to add an embarrassing postcript to the record of the Democratic national convention.

In Chicago the Democrats adopted a plank calling not only for repeal of prohibition, but for immediate modification of the Volstead act so as to legalize beer.

Now Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, in pressing for a vote on his 3.2 per cent beer proposal, is out to test the sincerity of the Democratic plank. He is challenging the Democrats to show by their votes whether they really want to restore beer.

Barkley Placed "on Spot."

One of the Democrats that Mr. Bingham has placed "on the spot" is Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, keynote orator at the Democratic convention. Mr. Barkley, an erstwhile dry, advocated submission of a repeal amendment in his speech, but said nothing about beer.

Mr. Bingham has included Mr. Barkley among the 51 senators whom he expects to vote favorably on his beer bill, now a rider to the home loan bank bill. If Mr. Barkley should vote for beer, it would cause great surprise among his associates, and, likewise, no doubt, would surprise Mr. Bingham.

"I could ask for no better campaign document," said Mr. Bingham, "than for Senator Barkley to vote against my amendment, in view of the fact that he was keynoter and that the platform calls for modification as well as repeal."

Test of Democrats.

If the Democrats fail to support his beer proposal, Mr. Bingham said, then "the Republicans surely will carry Connecticut."

"There may be some senators," Mr. Bingham continued, "who will try to

Attorneys General Plan Probe of Federal Taxes

Montgomery, Ala., July 5 (A.P.).—Thomas E. Knight, jr., attorney general of Alabama, was appointed today as chairman of a national committee of attorneys general to investigate the new Federal tax and its relation to State, county and city governments. Mr. Knight's appointment was received from Clement F. Robinson, attorney general of Maine and president of the National Association of Attorneys General of the United States.

"Our committee will resist the Federal Government's effort to collect any tax that hampers the operation of a State or its political subdivisions," Mr. Knight said.

Appomattox, Va., July 5 (A.P.).—"We surrendered to Grant, but will not surrender to Hoover," is the campaign slogan adopted by 50 Appomattox County citizens meeting here tonight.

Assembling not far from the spot where Lee laid down his sword at the end of the War Between the States, the group organized what they hoped was the first Roosevelt-Garner Club in Virginia, and perhaps the Nation.

Leave Harbor Grace 4 Hours Behind Record; Defy Weather.

Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, July 5 (A.P.).—Capt. Bennett Griffin and James Mattern were over the broad Atlantic tonight, headed for Europe on the second leg of their projected round-the-world flight against time and the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

The two American fliers, who left New York early today and reached Harbor Grace after being lost in fog banks that left them almost four hours behind the record holders at this point, had refreshments, refueled, and within approximately two hours more were headed east with one thought preponderant: "We want to get there, that's all."

At their departure from New York, the fliers said, the weather was perfect. As they neared Nova Scotia

Returns from 255 out of 3,309 precincts gave Thomas 9,195; Smith 6,167; McCool 4,886; and Albert C. Hunt, former State Supreme Court justice opposed to the administration policies of Gov. William H. Murray, 1,637.

Britain Is Firm In Irish Dispute

Government Is Insisting on Arbitration by Empire Tribunal Only.

London, July 5 (A.P.).—Proceeding with its threat of a 100 per cent retaliatory tariff on Irish Free State goods, the British government tonight insisted that the dispute over defaulted Irish land annuities be arbitrated by an empire tribunal if at all.

Its stand was reaffirmed in a reply it is sending to a note from the Free State government of President Eamon de Valera, which insisted that the annuities question be arbitrated by an international body.

Meanwhile George Lansbury, Labor party leader, said he would move rejection of the special duties bill, imposing the 100 per cent tariff on Free State goods as a means of collecting the annuities, when it comes up for second reading in the House of Commons tomorrow. The act was introduced and given first reading in Commons today, after a resolution authorizing the special duties had been passed by an overwhelming majority last night.

Howard, Former House Member, Is Dead at 75

Augusta, Ga., July 5 (A.P.).—William M. Howard, 75, prominent Augusta attorney and former member of Congress, died at his home here tonight after a long illness. Mr. Howard represented the Eighth Georgia District in Congress from 1879 to 1911.

President Taft appointed him a member of the Tariff Commission. Mr. Howard also was a regent of the Smithsonian Institution during his service in Congress and became a trustee of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace at the time of its organization.

HOOVER'S ARMS CUT PLAN TO BE SHELVED

Conference Prepares to Adjourn Until Fall After Lauding Proposals.

Geneva, July 5 (A.P.).—President Hoover's proposals to reduce armaments one-third were started tonight for a pigeonhole, where they will rest three or four months, and the way was cleared for early adjournment of the world disarmament conference until fall.

Before the adjournment is taken the conference will issue a declaration praising the Hoover plan and setting forth the points in it on which the various delegations are approximately agreed.

On Thursday the conference's general commission will hold a session at which those delegations that did not express themselves on the Hoover program when it was first announced will have an opportunity to say what they think.

The conference bureau tonight authorized Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to start drafting the declaration with which the conference will close its work for the summer. This declaration will contain the following points:

1. A tribute to the Hoover proposals as a valuable contribution to the conference.

2. Recognition that parts of the Hoover plan dealing with limitations on the number of effectives and on naval forces require considerable time for study by the powers concerned.

3. Announcement of the sundry

New York Industrialist Unofficially Offers Plan in Moscow.

WASHINGTON TALKS DETAILED TO SOVIET

Favorable Reception Hinted; Benefits of Project to Industry Told.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Moscow, July 5.—Tentative and unofficial moves are being made to reopen the question of formal diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia.

Acting alone and in a private capacity, Col. Frederick Pope, New York industrialist, has presented to officials here a suggestion that the American Government send an unofficial commissioner to the Soviet Union as a preliminary to possible negotiations for the establishment of normal relations between the two countries.

The Associated Press has reason to believe that his proposal was received with favor.

Conference With Leaders.

Col. Pope laid the matter last night before a special meeting of men high in the councils of the Soviet government. Among them were V. I. Mezhlauk, vice chairman of the State Planning Commission; V. V. Osinsky, head of the central administration of the national economic control; E. V. Rubinin, head of the American department of the commissariat for foreign affairs, and Karl Radek, the country's foremost international political commentator.

It was learned that the American discussed with them "satisfactory" conversations he held on the subject in certain quarters in Washington just before sailing for Russia late in May. The details of these conversations were undisclosed.

Col. Pope is expected to return to the United States this month, and undoubtedly he will renew his discussions in Washington.

So Far Unofficial.

In view of the reception accorded his proposal in Moscow, the next move probably will depend on the outcome of his Washington negotiations.

The proceedings thus far have been entirely unofficial, but there is no

TEAR BOMBS USED IN SIEGE ON HOME CLOSE TO CAPITOL

Gunman Gives Himself Up After Two-Hour Battle With Army of 500 Around House; Shot in Arm.

WANTED SOME FIREWORKS, HE GIVES AS EXPLANATION

Roomer Is Forced to Undergo Barrage From Marines and All Law Forces, But Finally Escapes; Thousands at Scene.

After killing one policeman and wounding another seriously, Nicholson A. Long, apparently mad, early today was shot in the arm and captured by police in his house after a two-hour gun battle with nearly 500 policemen and marines.

He had battled the officers with several pistols after they had been summoned to the house late last night. Despite a barrage of machine guns, rifles and police pistols, which poured into the house, he was struck but once.

The dead policeman is Private E. A. Swanson, of the Ninth Precinct, who arrived on the scene in a radio scout car. He was shot through the forehead and died at Providence Hospital, his wife, Ida A. Swanson, at his side.

Forced Out by Tear Gas.

Four bullet wounds through the arm and chest were suffered by Private A. C. Poulson, of the First Precinct. He was removed to Emergency Hospital.

Tear gas forced Long from the house. He was immediately grabbed by a score of policemen and hurried to the Fourth Precinct station. There he said: "I just did it to have some fun, to start some fireworks."

In the house during the long barrage was R. E. Taylor, who had been a roomer at the Long home for about six weeks. He was forced to obey the madman or be shot to death.

Finally driven frantic by the gas, Taylor ran to a window and leaned out yelling "I am an innocent man." As Long shot at him, he jumped out.

Treated for Gas Poisoning.

Fortunately police did not shoot at him and he was unhurt. He was taken to Providence Hospital and treated for tear gas poisoning.

Swanson, a rookie of a few months' service, was struck when a tear gas bomb forced Long from the house.

He dashed out on the porch. Swanson and several other officers were standing on the lawn of the house at the southeast corner of E and First streets.

Long shot and Swanson fell back on the lawn and lay still. The other officers scattered backward. An unidentified soldier ran to Swanson's side and pulled him from the line of fire.

Poulson was shot when he and Policeman Wallrodt, under cover of the heavy gas barrage, that drove Taylor from the house, rushed in and up the steps.

Taken by 2 Policemen.

Poulson was ahead. Through the acrid smoke of the gas, Long fired four shots. All struck Poulson in the shoulder and chest. Wallrodt shot and struck Long in the arm. He and Poulson then closed in on the man.

For nearly fifteen minutes there was considerable disorganization—then Lieut. Oscar Letterman, night inspector, and Lieut. John Flaherty arrived on the scene and posted the men. This was just before Swanson received the madman's bullet.

Barrett and Cannon were walking up the street when, without warn-

Dissension Flares as Bonus Veterans Mass at Capitol

Long-Smoldering Row Over Leadership Breaks as Commander Waters Seeks Food and Money in New York; Beef Arrives.

The feeling of discontent in the bonus army, which is being fomented by opponents of Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters, emerged at the Capitol yesterday as the veterans swarmed near the Senate wing to protest against adjournment until action is taken on their $2,400,000,000 bonus bill.

Waters' regime—which vests him with absolute control of the forces—was indirectly denounced by Harold B. Foulkrod, legislative agent of the army, who declared there is no "room for dictatorship in this army." Near him as he spoke, was Mike Thomas, of Camden, N. J., Waters' enemy for control of the army.

As the ragged men, variously estimated to number from 5,000 to 10,000, cheered and booed on the steps of the Capitol, Waters was in New York pleading for food and money for the men. His first shipment of 1,500 pounds of beef arrived at 6:15 o'clock last night at the airport and averted a serious crisis in the food situation.

All of the men subsisted yesterday on rations of corn mush, cracked wheat, dried bread and weak coffee. The beef was hastily distributed to the camps and a late meal was served at the various encampments to those who had gone hungry during the day.

With tinny drums beating out a monotonous marching time, the men swung along Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol, where they massed on the steps and heard round denunciations of President Hoover, Secretary of War Hurley, Ambassador Mellon, John Barton Payne, of the American Red Cross, and W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Before their march began, members of the radical wing of the army

5-Day Week Is Suggested In Lieu of Furlough Plan

Pending the comptroller general's ruling on uniform administration of the Federal furlough plan, heads of some Government departments yesterday were considering possibilities held out by five-day week features of the program.

By eliminating all work on Saturdays, it was pointed out, 26 work days a year could be saved. The economy act provides for 24 days of compulsory payless leave.

There is some conflict whether such a program could be instituted without an executive order from the White House or a ruling by the comptroller. It already applies to per diem workers under the act.

The House economy committee yesterday refused to report out a Senate resolution exempting employes of the American-Geneva arms delegation from provisions of the measure, limiting daily subsistence allowance to $5 a day.

PARIS DEMAND TIES DEBTS KNOT TIGHTER

Herriot Says U. S. Revision Must Come if Lausanne Parley Succeeds.

Lausanne, Switzerland, July 5 (A.P.).—Premier Edouard Herriot, of France, declared tonight that either the United States must revise war debts to fit the reparations agreement being negotiated at the Lausanne conference or Germany must continue paying under the Young plan.

This declaration climaxed a day of negotiation which led nowhere. Germany came to the conference June 16 saying she no longer could meet the Young plan payment. She still sticks to that contention.

The French premier's statement was made to the press by way of explanation of the necessity to France of a safeguarding clause in any agreement reached here. Such a clause would protect the French government in the event that German reparations were materially reduced in the hope that the United States would reduce war debts.

Suggestion of Von Papen.

Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany came forward today with a suggestion that his government pay a flat sum of 2,600,000,000 marks (approximately $600,000,000) and that in return the creditor governments annul the judgment of war guilt against Germany and permit her equality of armaments. M. Herriot categorically refused to discuss political conditions.

The British advanced a scheme, formulated by Sir Walter Layton, under which 2,600,000,000 marks in bonds, guaranteed by the Reichsbank, would be issued immediately in two slices, the first at 90 and the second at 95. The Germans were reported willing to accept this plan.

Importance of Clause.

The impression was growing stronger tonight that Chancellor von Papen attached the greatest importance to wiping out the "war guilt" clause from the Treaty of Versailles and that he looked upon the total that might be set for Germany to pay as a secondary consideration.

The British prime minister, who has been the leader in efforts to compromise the controversy between France and Germany, requested all delegations to be ready to visit him at any hour.

Boy, 4 Years Old, Saves Sister, 2, From Drowning

Burlington, Wis., July 5 (A.P.).—Little Johnny Webster is 4 years old and a hero who doesn't appreciate why every one is making a fuss over him.

Johnny and his 2-year-old sister, Mary Lou, were playing on a pier in the White River Saturday when the little girl fell into the water. Johnny lay on the pier and with both hands grasped her hair. He held her head above the water and yelled. His cries attracted their mother, Mrs. John Webster. The girl was in the water so long that she suffered from exposure.

Buenos Aires, July 5 (U.P.).—The executive department today presented a report to the Chamber of Deputies recommending that Argentina should not attempt to reestablish formal trade relations with Soviet Russia.

The chamber had asked the government for data and recommendations. "Iyamtorg," the Soviet trading trust for this country, was suppressed by the Argentine government August 20, 1931, after allegations that it was used not alone for trade promotion but for distributing Communist propaganda.

guns" in the category of dangerous weapons.

Other District bills approved, which also have passed the Senate, bring District condemnation procedure and bonding requirements on public contracts in line with the Federal law and sanction use here of 2½-gallon ice cream containers.

Existing firearms regulations merely require that a purchaser give name and address to a dealer, who communicates the information to police after sale. It is easily evaded. Police records show firearms were used here in 686 crimes of violence in the five-year period ending last year.

Under the Capper bill an applicant for a pistol applies in duplicate and gives the dealer his name, address, occupation and other pertinent information. The dealer must give a copy of this to police within six hours, and the sale can not be consummated until 48 hours afterward. The provision allows time for investigation of the applicant and is designed to prevent hasty and impulsive purchase of firearms.

Right of an individual to possess a pistol in his home or on land belonging to him is not disturbed in the bill. The superintendent of licenses may issue permits, valid for a year, to carry revolvers.

In addition to penalties provided by law for criminal offenses, the bill imposes penalties ranging from a maximum of five years for a first conviction to 30 years for a fourth conviction for crimes of violence with a dangerous weapon.

The bill prohibits:

Unlicensed carrying of concealed weapons.

Possession of a pistol by one previously convicted of a crime of violence.

Dealers' displays of weapons, or placards advertising their sale.

Sale of firearms to minors, persons of unsound mind, drug addicts or anyone convicted of a crime of violence.

Alteration of identifying marks on a firearm.

Ownership of a machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, black jack, slugshot, sand club, sandbag, metal knuckles or any device for silencing or muffling the noise of a discharged firearm.

Harp of Tammany Hall Sings No Song of Victory

By JOHN J. DALY

IT seems that once upon a time there was a Harp, as the boys call an Irishman in New York, a Harp named Al Smith. Shortly after the Democratic convention in Chicago this champion of Tammany Hall got on a train and went back to his beloved Sidewalks of New York, not waiting even to congratulate the winning candidate.

So the Governor of New York, who happens to be the winning candidate, sent a message to the New York headquarters of a Harp named Al Smith, asking him and his cohorts to stop their foolin', get on the band wagon and follow the banner.

Tammany Hall applauded the message, individually, if not collectively—though the telegram was not sent collect.

John F. Curry, a leader of Tammany Hall, signed the yellow slip, but no sign of Al Smith, the Harp that once through Tammany Hall the soul of harmony spread.

They are paging Al, but they can not find him, those outsiders who would woo and win the heart of Tammany.

Where is he? Where is the Big Chief? Where is the Chieftain?

WERE Tom Moore back at his writing desk, he would undoubtedly revise his ancient lyric, to read:

The Harp that once through Tam'ny Hall
The call for action sped
Now stands as mute by Tam'ny wall
As if that harp had fled.
So still the sachems! Other days,
Their glory bubbled o'er;
But now, the tocsin sounding praise
Is heard, alas, no more.

No more the Wigman in the night,
Its tale of vict'ry tells;
No more the line forms to the right
Rehearsing campaign yells.
Thus Tammany, as if in sleep,
Ignores the Gov'nor's throng,
And hides away, the while they weep,
A Harp that sings no song.

POLICEMAN SLAIN, OTHERS SHOT IN SIEGE OF MANIAC GUNMAN

ing, they were shot at. They ran across the park and dodged behind the trees.

Son Calls for Police.

It was learned that the man went mad early in the evening. One of his two sons went to the Fourth Precinct station and asked that police be sent. At that time the gravity of the situation was not understood, police said.

Later an older son and the wife of Long were driven from the home by the shooting maniac. Police responded, ran up the steps, and were greeted with a warning "keep away," and two shots.

The wife collapsed after she saw the policeman shot. She was taken to Providence Hospital. There she could not answer questions except to say "he was always a mean man." She was hysterical.

Meanwhile police organization brought Inspector T. R. Bean, several lieutenants and Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, who assumed charge.

Riflemen, both police and marines from the Marine Barracks, surrounded the house and poured a searing fire. Tear gas bombs were poured in.

Believed to Have Been Hit.

Several times Long ran from the house and apparently miraculously escaped the rifle fire. Once he dashed down the front steps, firing as he went. He ducked into the front cellar entrance in the face of a fusillade, apparently hit.

Police at first had no gas masks. For a few minutes, after his dash down the steps, the man's fire was stilled. As officers were preparing to rush the house the man began firing again from an upper window.

Apparently driven from floor to floor by the tear gas, he would appear at an upper window and fire several times, then he would appear again at the rear. Or would fire down from the roof.

Amount of Arms Unknown.

How many guns he had was not known. It was thought that he had at least a rifle and one pistol or revolver. More than one hundred shots were fired, so he apparently had an inexhaustible supply of ammunition.

Swanson, the slain policeman, was married and had four children. His wife, Ida A. Swanson, was at the hospital when he died. He lay on the sidewalk where the soldier dragged him for several minutes before he was loaded into an automobile by policemen and newspapermen.

The soldier who dragged him from the place where he fell stayed beside him and attempted to stop the flow of blood.

At the hospital he was brought into the emergency room where doctors and sisters were treating Mrs. Long for hysteria and collapse.

Inspector Edwards personally went to headquarters and broke down the door of the supply room to get gas masks and flares and gas bombs.

Rescue Squad Called.

Meanwhile the rescue squad was called to bring masks and searchlights to throw on the three-story brick house, which is three doors from the corner of E street.

Thousands of spectators lined streets behind the line of fire. Acrid smoke of the tear gas bombs covered a wide area. Several persons were overcome and treated at Providence Hospital. The gas also forced people from nearby houses. They crouched behind parked autos.

All the streets leading to the house were blocked off by policemen. Street cars of the Anacostia line were stopped.

Finally riot guns and submachine guns were brought up for a concentrated shelling. Before this could be done Long was captured.

Miss Patsy Sullivan, 18 years old, standing on the doorstep of her home, 115 E street southeast, was overcome by tear gas and sent to Providence Hospital. Her condition was said to be undetermined.

No charge was placed against the madman. There will be an inquest tomorrow.

Among the first of the four police who came to the scene, D. L. Guest, in the Ninth Precinct radio car, ran under the porch, when Long fired at him.

He stayed there during the long fight and nearly succumbed to the tear gas. Staggering out when the battle was over, he was removed to Casualty Hospital, where he remained for treatment.

Another Also Gassed.

Similar was the state of L. O. Tompkins, of the First Precinct, who went onto the roof in the early stages of the siege. He was treated for gas poisoning.

Eight riflemen across the street in the park raked the house with incessant riflefire.

William Merrill Long, 32 years old, one of the man's sons, was taken to the First Precinct Station and held on charges of investigation.

All of the radio cars and police cars in the city were at the scene with the exception of three. This forced these cars to answer many minor calls in distant parts of the city.

Shouse Will Support Roosevelt and Garner

Chicago, July 5 (A.P.).—Jouett Shouse, storm center of the Democratic national convention's fight over the permanent chairmanship, announced today before leaving for Washington he would support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner in the fall campaign.

Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, was the Smith-Raskob candidate for the permanent chairmanship, but lost to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, in a bitter fight on the convention floor. His status in the forthcoming campaign has not been determined as yet.

Von Gronau Flying Boat Is Off Again for America

Lubeck, Germany, July 5 (U.P.).—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator, who flew to the United States twice within a year, hopped off today from Travemunde, State of Lubeck, in a Dornier-Wal flying boat on the first leg of a flight which may again take him to North America.

The captain's immediate destination was List on Sylt Island, the farthest north of the North Frisian Islands, in the North Sea off the west coast of Denmark. The distance from Travemunde is about 125 miles in a direct line with Iceland, the general course of Capt. Von Gronau's two other flights.

Capitol Limited Engine Is Covered Up by Coal

Connellsville, Pa., July 5 (A.P.).—The engine of the Capitol Limited, fleet Baltimore & Ohio Railroad passenger train, was covered up by coal and disabled tonight at Meyersdale. The deluge of coal descended while the firemen was attempting to fill the tender. No one was injured.

The train was incapacitated until No. 19, Detroit Limited, was hooked on to its cars and they were pushed into Connellsville, 42 miles away, where a new engine was supplied. Both trains were delayed almost one hour.

Antigrasshopper Cash Is Refused Fourth Time

(Associated Press.)

For the fourth time the House yesterday refused to appropriate Federal funds to aid State grasshopper control work. The vote was 113 to 52.

Representative Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, made a motion to accept a $600,000 allotment placed in the $175,000,000 agriculture supply bill. Chairman Byrns, of the appropriation committee, opposed the motion and it was rejected. The huge supply bill then was returned to conference.

Former Milwaukee Man Held in Florida Slaying

Lakeland, Fla., July 5 (A.P.).—Emmett A. Donnelly, formerly assistant attorney general at Milwaukee, Wis., was arrested today on a charge of having been an accessory in the slaying of former Mayor Joe H. Beal, of Lakewales, Fla.

Authorities said they have been advised a $20,000 insurance policy on Beal's life listed Donnelly as the beneficiary. The former mayor was shot from ambush as he sat on his porch the night of June 25.

Manchurian Customs Revenue Drops.

Shanghai, July 5 (A.P.).—Seizure of customs revenue in Manchuria by the Manchoukuo authorities has resulted in a deficit of £9,000 for June instead of the usual surplus, Sir Frederick Maze, inspector general of Chinese maritime customs, said today.

Noted Flier and 2 Aids Die in Radium Venture

Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 5 (A.P.).—A famed Northland pilot, Andrew D. Cruickshank, and two mechanics have lost their lives in a venture to open up the radium ore fields of the Far North.

Canadian Airways received word today that the bodies of Cruickshank, Horace W. Torrie and Harry King, missing nearly a week, had been found near Lake Mazenod, 60 miles north of Fort Rae, on the aerial trail to the rich Great Bear Lake area.

Their plane obviously had crashed and buried its nose deep in a ridge after wandering aimlessly in poor visibility. Although details were scant, it was believed the men had been dead for five days. The deaths were the first in a venturesome season of flying prospectors and equipment from Edmonton to the Great Bear metal fields.

GOVERNORSHIP AGAIN POSSIBLE FOR SMITH

Tammany Move to Back Him Reported as Gesture for Harmony.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Swift gestures of harmony began consolidating the Nation's Democracy behind Franklin D. Roosevelt today and raising the possibility of a Roosevelt-Smith ticket in New York.

A Tammany movement to nominate Alfred E. Smith for a fifth term as governor was described by the Evening Post. All of Tammany's spokesmen were absent and Smith still maintained his silence at the home of a son.

Gov. Roosevelt spent a busy day, announcing a vacation yacht trip, expressing pleasure at the complimentary statement of the Independent Republican, Senator Johnson, of California, and planning to come here this week-end. There was immediate speculation as to whether a conference would be held between Smith and Roosevelt.

In Boston, Mayor James Curley, ardent Roosevelt supporter, tendered the olive branch to Gov. Joseph B. Ely, stanch Smith partisan. Curley said not only would he support Ely for re-election, but he regarded it as "clearly the duty" of Ely to run again.

The powerful O'Connell brothers, Ed and Dan, of Albany, who swung their forces behind Smith at Chicago, treated for peace by arranging an official welcome to be held there Thursday for Roosevelt. Mayor John Boyd Thacher, who voted for Smith on all four of the convention ballots, will be the principal speaker.

A possible bar to a fifth term for Smith in the governor's chair was seen in the general understanding that Roosevelt desired Lieut. Gov. Herbert Lehman to succeed him. Lehman, however, has been friendly both to Smith and Roosevelt and a sacrifice on his part should party harmony be benefited was not regarded as improbable. As a convention delegate Lehman voted for Roosevelt.

A more likely barrier would be Smith's reluctance to retrace his steps and again run for governor after aspiring to the Presidency.

Meantime, Charles F. Kerrigan, assistant to Mayor Walker, expressed doubt the Mayor's answer to the charges before Gov. Roosevelt would be ready before ten days or two weeks.

Secret War Council Held By Smith Foes in Texas

Dallas, Tex., July 5 (A.P.).—Veterans of the prohibitionist insurrection of 1928, when Texas voted for a Republican President for the first time since carpetbagger days, held a secret council of war here today. Former State Senator Thomas B. Love, one of the outstanding anti-Smith leaders four years ago, commented:

"All I can say is that this meeting had nothing to do with national affairs." The drys named a committee to draft a statement of policy, headed by Cato Sells, of Fort Worth, commissioner of Indian affairs under the Wilson administration.

Economic Issue First, Says Kansas Governor

Topeka, Kans., July 5 (A.P.).—Asserting the Democratic repeal plank raises no issue in the current campaign, Gov. Harry H. Woodring said today economic issues, not prohibition, should be controlling.

No candidate elected in November "can vote either for or against repeal of the eighteenth amendment," the governor added. "A vote for either party will not affect the prohibition question, since both parties are now committed to the resubmission of the question as a nonpartisan issue."

Baltimore Democratic Club Indorses Ticket

Baltimore, July 5 (A.P.).—The candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, for President of the United States, and John N. Garner, of Texas, for Vice President, has been indorsed by the Concord Club, largest Democratic organization in Baltimore.

The action was taken last night at a meeting presided over by Robert B. Ennis, club president, who was one of the floor lieutenants of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, at the Democratic national convention in Chicago last week.

Poughkeepsie Parade Staged for Roosevelt

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 5 (A.P.).—Down here where the Democratic presidential candidate is known as Frank Roosevelt or, more intimately, as "F. D.," his Dutchess County neighbors celebrated his nomination tonight with a two-hour parade.

County and city Democratic leaders staged the celebration, the largest political parade Poughkeepsie ever had. Banners carried by the marchers proclaimed the paraders' belief that a Roosevelt victory in November will mean the return of beer.

Heir to Manuel's Throne Confident of Restoration

Seebenstein, Austria, July 5 (A.P.).—Dom Duarte Nuno, successor to former King Manuel II as claimant of the Portuguese throne, vacated nearly 22 years before the death of the exiled Manuel in England Saturday, expressed little concern with politics today at the estate where he raises chickens here.

He told an interviewer, however, that he was "fully convinced" of his "legal rights" to the throne and expected to see the states which have become republics return to the monarchic principle.

Florida Town Is Sold At Auction for $100

Tampa, Fla., July 5 (A.P.).—Sun City, a town 25 miles south of here that started out a few years ago to be a moving picture colony, was sold today at public auction for $100.

The town's principal assets are a power and light plant valued at $100,000 and a large movie studio.

The purchaser was W. W. Staplen, of Orlando, Fla., who held a $50,000 mortgage on the town.

ROOSEVELT EXPECTS REPUBLICAN BACKING

Declares He Has Received Letters and Telegrams of Warm Support.

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., July 5 (A.P.).—The reaction to his acceptance speech indicates to Gov. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, that many Republican voters this year will cast their lot with him, he said today.

"A great many of the telegrams in that pile," Mr. Roosevelt remarked, pointing to a stack of several hundred, "say that the senders always have been Republicans but this year will vote Democratic."

He added that a large percentage of his well wishers said they saw in the Democratic platform and candidates hope for a solution of present economic conditions. A "good many" of the letters received by the nominee said the convention outcome "tied the party together," remarked Mr. Roosevelt.

One of today's telegrams was from a friend in Seattle, advising Roosevelt that the Seattle Times, "a life-long Republican paper," as the telegram said, had announced its support of the Democratic ticket. Mr. Roosevelt had only had time to glance over his communications, but he said many of them were from "important people."

After he has read them more carefully, the names of many of the senders and the contents will be announced. About 2,500 telegrams and a like number of letters have been received. All will be answered.

Back at his flower-bedecked desk in the executive office, the governor turned his attention to State affairs, receiving first Mark Graves, budget director. Graves is directing the governor's plan to present to the incoming governor next January an outline for reducing the total cost of New York's goverment which for several years has approximated $300,000,000. He had no conversation today with national Democratic leaders.

Next week Mr. Roosevelt will keep a promise to his four sons to go with them on a boat trip from a Long Island harbor to Portsmouth, N. H.

Louisiana May Vote On Dry Law Repeal

Double Test on Prohibition Passes the Legislature; Goes to Governor.

Baton Rouge, La., July 5 (A.P.).—A double test of prohibition sentiment in Loisiana was approved by the Legislature today with final passage of a bill to submit the Hood act, State prohibition statute, to a referendum of the people in the November elections.

Several weeks ago, the Assembly, by resolution, ordered a referendum for November 8 on the proposition of petitioning Congress for a national constitutional convention to take up repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Today's action for repeal of the Hood act must have executive approval to become effective. Gov. O. K. Allen has not disclosed his attitude.

In spite of a ruling from the Legislative Bureau, headed by the attorney general, that submission of the Hood act to a referendum is unconstitutional in view of the lack of constitutional authority for submitting anything but constitutional amendments to the people, the House passed the Senate submission bill, 63 to 27.

WEST VIRGINIA RAIN CAUSES BIG DAMAGE

Rivers Are at Flood Stage in Southern Part; Tourists Are Stranded.

Charleston, W. Va., July 5 (A.P.).—A pouring rain, driven by strong winds, brought additional consternation tonight to flood-stricken residents of lowlands in southern West Virginia and to water-bound tourists.

Heralded by dark clouds that brought darkness of night, the storm began just as swollen rivers and streams had started to recede. It lasted for more than half an hour.

The extent to which the new storm would effect the already high streams was not estimated.

Waters were falling swiftly late in the day, clearing highways that had been blocked by high waters since yesterday. Road commission officials said all but one road had been opened. The lone road still water-blocked was between Charleston and Clendenin en route to northern State points. It was expected to be open sometime during the night.

Damage Extent Unknown.

A count of the damage caused by the raging waters had not been made tonight. However, numerous house-boats, dwelling places of river families, were swept downstream in the Elk and Kanawha Rivers at Charleston. Debris in the swirling waters also included portions of barns, chicken coops, garages, houses, barges and small boats.

Two highway bridges at Little Birch, in Braxton County, and between Summerville and Richwood, and three trestles on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Leatherwood, Sycamore and Middle Creek were reported out.

Dynamite was used to break a log jam that threatened the State highway bridge at Curtin, in Nicholas County.

More than 20 long distance telephone circuits to Clarksburg, Washington, Baltimore and other points are out of order.

Southern Ohio Affected.

Portsmouth, Ohio, July 5 (A.P.).—With many creeks already out of their banks as a result of a 2½-hour rainfall, this section of southern Ohio faced serious flood conditions following a near-cloudburst tonight.

The deluge followed 4.15 inches of rain over the week-end, which had flooded several villages. Twelve small bridges were washed out in Lawrence County.

Despite previous heavy rains, small streams in Scioto and Adams Counties receded during the day and weather observers believed the flood danger had passed. Tonight's downpour, however, started the creeks on a rampage and the Ohio and Scioto Rivers were rising rapidly.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 5 (A.P.).—Heavy rains threatened tonight to spoil some of the crops in this section. Nearly 4 inches had fallen since Sunday night and the forecast for tomorrow was continued thundershowers. Approximately 1.58 inches came down today.

The racer and his former wife were divorced in Los Angeles last spring. His bride was divorced in Reno in 1922.

Corporal Found Mortally Wounded by Thieves He Was Intercepting.

Regina, Sask., July 5 (A.P.).—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police were engaged in an intensive man hunt tonight for the persons who mortally wounded Corpl. Leonard V. Ralls when he attempted to stop their automobile near here early today.

Corpl. Ralls was found lying in his car on the highway a mile east of Foam Lake and was rushed to a doctor with a bullet wound under his heart. He died within fifteen minutes after gasping: "They've got me! they've gone east."

Corpl. Ralls was detailed to intercept a car traveling at high speed and believed to be carrying thieves who broke into a store at Theodore, 15 miles west of Yorkton, Saturday night. Tire tracks at the spot indicated he was crowded off the road and shot down ruthlessly. He was the father of four children.

STORM-TORN TOWN TAXED FOR SHELTER

Fourth Victim of Nebraska-Kansas Tornado Is Boy of 18.

Washington, Kans., July 5 (A.P.).—This town of 1,300 persons struggled tonight with the task of sheltering half its population, made homeless by a tornado, which killed three persons here after a brief errand of death in southeastern Nebraska.

Hotels, public buildings and the homes of neighbors were thrown open to persons whose residences were destroyed yesterday while they were gathered in the city park at a Fourth of July celebration.

C. F. Rowland and Miss Jessie Clarke, Red Cross workers, were en route from St. Louis. Meanwhile physicians and nurses of Washington and surrounding towns cared for the injured and those ill from shock and exposure.

Chance played a part in preventing a widespread loss of life. The more than 100 residences destroyed by the storm were razed while their owners were assembled in the park, which was not in the path of the twister.

Alva Simnit, 18, the fourth person to lose his life as a result of the storm, died in a hospital at Clay Center this morning. Peter Gillett, 72, a mail carrier, was dashed against his barn and killed, and Garland Hubka, 20, Narka, Kans., died in the collapse of an automobile agency where he sought shelter.

Previous to its visitation here, the tornado destroyed a farm home near Hubbell, Nebr., and killed Mrs. F. K. Slagle, 50. Her husband and their sons, Roy and Clyde, were injured.

Representatives of insurance companies estimated the damage here at between $250,000 and $500,000.

BILL FOR HOME LOAN BANKS NEARING VOTE

Senate Adopts Proposal of Couzens Reducing Number of Institutions to 4.

(Associated Press.)

The last of the economic reconstruction measures urged by the administration—a bill to create a system of Federal home loan banks—made definite progress in the Senate yesterday and leaders hoped for a vote today.

Without a record vote, the Senate adopted a proposal by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, to reduce to four the number of banks authorized under the bill. The measure as passed by the House provided for a system of eight to twelve banks.

The bill was described by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader and its sponsor in the Senate, as designed particularly to relieve the pressure on the small home owner with a mortgage on his property who finds himself hard pressed financially.

Couzens contended, however, that there was nothing in the bill guaranteeing that building and loan associations and other mortgage holders borrowing from the proposed Federal system of banks would pass on the benefits to the home owners in the form of mortgage extensions.

The Michigan senator succeeded in having the Senate adopt an amendment to permit home owners unable to get money from other sources to borrow from the home loan banks.

This section would apply so long as the Government owned stock in the system. The bill at present provides that up to $125,000,000 of the stock of the system shall be subscribed by the Federal Treasury.

4 Marooned on Island 7 Days Are Rescued

The Pas, Manitoba, July 5 (A.P.).—Four persons have been rescued after being marooned on an island in Cedar Lake for seven days, information received here today said.

The four, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bayne, of Ralls Island, and Henry Reider and William Grund, left here June 9 by canoe for Island Lake, scene of new gold discoveries. On June 18 their canoes, propelled by outboard motors, were swamped in Cedar Lake, and they spent eight hours in the water clinging to one of the overturned canoes before they reached the island.

Import Rules May Drive U. S. Films From Reich

Berlin, July 5 (A.P.).—American motion picture companies operating in Germany are considering whether it is worth while to continue here under the new restrictions on imported films, notably that which requires that sound synchronization in the German language must be produced in Germany.

Heads of the companies met today, but because there was some doubt about interpretation of the new regulations, effective July 1, the meeting adjourned until next week. Meanwhile some firms have given their German employes provisional notice of dismissal.

Children Saved as Note From Plane Tells Danger

Lieut. Williams' Nerve Prevents Tragedy as Ship Is Crippled.

New York, July 5 (U.P.).—A thousand boys and girls were playing games in the open fields at Van Cortlandt Park today. Directly above them hovered an airplane, its gas pipe broken and in imminent danger of exploding.

Only the aviator, Lieut. Alford Williams, United States Navy, retired, a speed king in his own right, knew the danger involved. If he attempted to land his pursuit plane, some one—perhaps many—would be killed. If he remained in the air, the plane would be destroyed and the wreckage would fall upon the noisy group below.

Williams scribbled a note to the police, took another turn around the field, his engine sputtering badly, and awaited developments. Swinging over a police booth, he attached the note to a screwdriver and dropped it.

Sergt. John Randolph, a mounted policeman, saw the missile fall and wondered, casually, what it was all about. Airplane advertising stunts are frequent in New York.

But the moment he read the note and its import struck home, the sergeant went into action. Back and forth over the field he rode, shouting warnings, herding the now frightened children out of the danger zone.

An observant policeman in a booth nearer the center of the city watched the crazy gyrations of the plane over the park. He telephoned to headquarters, and the floating squad cars in north sections of the city were warned. They sped to the park and joined Sergt. Randolph in his frantic efforts to clear the ground.

ALFORD WILLIAMS.

Lieut. Williams' predicament became more serious. Valuable minutes were being lost.

The struggling police finally forced the crowd completely away from the parade ground and signalled for Williams to "come on."

Williams cut off his motor, circled again, and made a sure landing, safely and gracefully.

THOMAS AHEAD IN OKLAHOMA FOR SENATE RENOMINATION

the basis of returns from 127 out of 3,309 precincts.

Mrs. Mabel Bassett, State commissioner of charities and corrections, and E. B. Howard, former representative, led the candidates for Democratic nomination for representative at large when 237 precincts had reported. The vote:

Mrs. Bassett, 3,899; Howard, 3,458; Claude Weaver, 2,903; Campbell Russell, 2,479.

The dean of the Oklahoma House delegation, Representative Jim V. McClintic, Democrat, was hard pressed by Neil Gardner, in the Seventh District. In the first 6 precincts reported out of 347, McClintic had 179 votes; Gardner, 158. Grover Hope, Frederick, had 138.

Representative F. B. Swank, who faced vigorous opposition in his quest for Democratic renomination in the Fifth District, piled up a comfortable lead in the early returns. The vote from 16 out of 425 precincts gave: Swank, 387; John H. Wright, 151; R. H. Wilson, 116; O. B. Mothershead, 113. Four other candidates trailed.

Phil C. Ferguson, of Woodward, forged ahead of Ernest W. Marland, Ponca City oil man, for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eighth District as first returns were received.

Representative Wilburn Cartwright, Third District Democrat, was far ahead of four opponents, and Representative M. C. Garber, only Republican representative, was driving toward renomination in the Eighth District.

Representative Jed Johnson's chances for a clear majority and thus renomination without a run-off were good. He had two opponents.

Grover Phillips and Bart Aldridge, on the basis of early returns, were close to Representative Tom McKeown in the Fourth District Democratic contest.

For the Republican nomination for representative at large, R. A. Howard, of Ardmore, was leading in returns from 26 precincts. The vote was: Howard, 233; George R. Taylor, Cushing, 163; A. Gray Gilmer, Oklahoma City, 123; R. B. Butts, Muskogee, 99; Mattie Cullimore, Tulsa, 82, and Albert S. Gilles, Edmond, 54.

Wirt Franklin, independent oil leader, remained in the van of the Republican senatorial race with 860 votes from 95 precincts. Former Representative U. S. Stone had 448; "Big Jim" Harris, for years a powerful figure in his party, 389.

J. C. (Jack) Walton, ousted governor, attempting another political comeback, fell behind A. S. J. Shaw, former State auditor, in the Democratic race for corporation commissioner. Walton, defeated for United States senator and for Mayor of Oklahoma City since he was removed in 1923 by impeachment, had 5,140 votes from 221 precincts; Shaw, 5,509, and C. C. Childers, incumbent, 4,392.

Of Gov. Murray's "fire bells" bills, the unemployment relief commission measure had a slight lead with around a score precincts reported. The tax limitation and crop curtailment bills were trailing.

Bank Bandits Kill Mute For Ignoring Command

San Pierre, Ind., July 5 (U.P.).—Albert Benham was standing in front of the Bank of San Pierre today when four bandits ran out with $2,000 loot in their arms.

"Beat it," they yelled at Benham. Benham didn't understand. They shot him to death as they climbed into a sedan manned by a fifth robber and escaped.

Benham was a deaf mute.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

JOIN THE ELMER TWITCHELL PARTY NOW!

AFTER carefully scanning the platforms of both major parties today and finding that they had neglected to make any promises on many of the great issues touching the lives of all American men and women, Elmer Twitchell came out today with his own party, offering himself as President on the following platform. Mr. Twitchell has a complete fishing outfit and sees no reason why he shouldn't make a good President.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

1. We believe the traffic lights of the United States need immediate study and pledge ourselves to do everything possible toward preventing the red lights staying on any longer than the green. We believe one of the things slowing up the country today is too many traffic lights.

STATE ROADS.

2. We believe the roads are pretty good but believe that the situation today calls for narrower interurban buses or wider curves.

RAILROADS.

3. We think the railroads are in trouble enough and that no party should add to their trials by offering suggestions.

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

4. We think the contract bridge craze has reached a point where it is becoming a permanent threat to world peace and we favor the creation of a Federal Board of Appeals to handle all bridge table arguments. We believe one of the causes of dissension is that too many people are writing books on how to play the game, and we agree to work for Federal control of bridge books and an amendment prohibiting kibitzers.

CANTALOUPES.

5. We know of no problem worrying the public more than the selection of cantaloupes with the right taste, and we favor appointment of a scientific board to study the problem with a view to developing a means of determining the quality of these melons by methods more reliable than the application of the thumb and forefinger.

PROHIBITION.

6. We promise nothing beyond reasonable efforts to limit the variety of labels, and to pass drastic laws against making the metal caps any more intricate.

GOLD STANDARD.

7. Never mind the gold standard. What America needs more than anything else is a speedy removal from the baloney standard.

MISCELLANEOUS.

8. We pledge ourselves to work for:
The return of the 15-cent shave and the 25-cent haircut.
Fewer bald violinists.
Quieter outboard motors.
The abolition of minute steaks, presidential fishing camps, radishes, cucumbers and jokes about spinach.
Simplification of the equipment of snare drummers in philharmonic orchestras.
No vocalizing in residential zones.
More clams in clam chowder.
Less noise in the kitchens of chain restaurants.
A little judgment in oiling State roads.
Cheaper wooden golf tees.
Silencers for lawn mowers.
More frequent repairs to locker-room showers.
Community necking lanes properly protected from noncontestants by the police.
Fewer lady harpists.
Wider golf fairways.
The reduction by 80 per cent of the number of places on an automobile registration blank where the applicant is instructed to write his full name and address.

SURCEASE.

Now convention days are over,
Every speaker disappears
And a quite distracted nation
Gets a chance to rest its ears.

Add similes: As rare as a nominating speech without the adjective, "sterling."

ANOTHER ISSUE DODGED.

If the Democratic delegates had been kept away from their homes much longer there would have been a need to do something for the Forgotten Manse.

Cry to a stunt aviator: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

CONTAGIOUS.

Voice of the radio owner during the convention: "Sock me again; I can still hear them!"

FOOD FALLING SHORT IN MEXICAN STRIKE

All Traffic Paralyzed in Area of Southern Pacific System.

Nogales, Son., Mex., July 5 (A.P.).—The shadow of food shortages fell over various cities along the western coast of Mexico today as a general strike on the Southern Pacific System continued to paralyze all rail traffic over the area.

Reports from some regions indicated the situation rapidly was becoming acute because of a lack of food and water. Adding to the burden of thousands placed out of employment, prices of necessities, such as coffee, lard and flour, have advanced as the supplies run low.

Reports reaching here gave no hope of early agreement between the strikers and railroad officials. The strike was ordered as a protest against wage reductions. With not a wheel moving over the 1,200 miles of the Southern Pacific's Mexican System, tons of mail, baggage, express and freight are tied up here.

Mexico City, July 5 (A.P.).—E. B. Sloan, representative here of the Southern Pacific Railway of Mexico, said today he had protested to the board of arbitration against a threat to dynamite the private car of H. R. Titcombe, president of the line, unless Titcombe left Mexico.

He said the threat was made in the presence of a Southern Pacific official by a striking section foreman at San Blas, Nayarit.

Gold Boom to Aid Chile.

Santiago, Chile, July 5 (A.P.).—Boom times in Chile's gold fields soon will counteract bad times in the nitrate and copper industries, D. Stewart Iglehart, president of W. R. Grace & Co., importers, exporters and shippers, declared today after a survey of the nation's economic situation. Gold and agriculture, Mr. Iglehart said, should pull Chile out of the depression. Many men already have gone to the gold fields and soon thousands will follow them, he predicted.

Cuban Decree Backs Sugar Pool.

Havana, Cuba, July 5 (A.P.).—President Machado has signed a decree legalizing resolutions adopted by the Sugar Institute and the National Export Corporation for pooling 700,000 tons of sugar. The decree, signed Saturday, prohibited exportation of this quantity of sugar, which had been segregated and designated for shipment to the United States in 1932, until January 1, 1933, unless the average price of Cuban sugar reaches 1¼ cents and maintains that level for five consecutive days.

Ousted Governor Files Action.

Chihuahua City, Mexico, July 5 (U.P.).—Gov. Roberto Fierro of Chihuahua, ousted from office summarily by secret vote of the State Legislature Saturday, today filed an action in District Court here demanding reinstatement and asking protection of the court. Fierro's expulsion, it became known today, resulted from charges of misappropriation of public funds.

Cologne Newspaper Suspended by Court

Leipzig, Germany, July 5 (A.P.).—The supreme court today ordered the suspension for three days of the Cologne Volkszeitung. The government charged the newspaper endangered the country's foreign policy.

An editorial to which the government objected criticized Chancellor von Papen's course at Lausanne and esserted even some of the Richtist circles considered him a "catastrophe."

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF

Vienna, July 5 (A.P.).—Lightning killed eight persons in Austria and Jugoslavia yesterday and today. Near Gfuend, Austria, Prof. Ferdinand Diensti died when lightning struck a radio antenna while he was listening to a broadcasting of the weather report. A shopkeeper was killed in Pristina, Jugoslavia, and in a field near Belgrade five peasants were struck by a bolt. A mother was struck and killed in a nearby village, but an infant in her lap was unhurt.

Quesnel, B. C., July 5 (A.P.).—Two and a half years and 5,000 miles on the road, walking from New York to Alaska, Miss Thea Francis has crossed the Frasier River at this point and struck out for the North over the lonely Yukon telegraph trail. It is frequented only by telegraph operators and linemen, an odd Indian or two, and an occasional grizzly bear.

Berlin, July 5 (A.P.).—Without waiting for the return of Chancellor Franz von Papen from the Lausanne reparations conference, President von Hindenburg entrained tonight for his country home at Neudeck, where he will spend his vacation. The president was accompanied by his son, Col. Oskar von Hindenburg.

Paris, July 5 (A.P.).—Under a bill approved by the Senate today the widow of President Paul Doumer, who was assassinated in May, will receive an annual pension of 200,000 francs (currently about $7,800). The bill also carried the same pension for former President Raymond Poincare.

London, July 5 (A.P.).—Hubert Stowitts, fair-haired American painter, who once was dancing partner to Pavlova, won high praise from Ambassador Mellon when he exhibited 150 paintings done in eighteen months in India. Mr. Mellon, opening the exhibition, said that Stowitts was a sincere artist with an eye for color and draughtsmanship which enabled him to achieve the most pleasing results.

Berlin, July 5 (A.P.).—Because of the restrictions which bar untrammeled flow of currencies across the borders, Danish and German business men have reached an agreement for the barter of German industrial wares against Danish farm produce. The agreement was reached through the good offices of the respective governments acting in cooperation with the central banks of both countries. Under the plan special accounts will be opened in the principal German and Danish banks, the exporters in each country receiving their own currencies for their exports from the purchasers of imported goods.

GARNER ACCORDED OVATION BY HOUSE

Democrats and Republicans Join in Hailing Second on Party's Ticket.

(Associated Press.)

A rousing ovation was given Speaker John N. Garner yesterday in the House as he faced his colleagues for the first time since becoming the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Both Democrats and Republicans leaped to their feet and shouted rebel yells as the crowded galleries joined in the applause.

Garner entered the chamber just before the noon convening hour and the demonstration burst forth immediately. It continued for several minutes during which he took his chair and vainly rapped for order.

Apparently embarrassed by the tribute, Garner paused to remove his glasses, and then smiled almost shyly at his colleagues.

After the opening prayer, Representative Snell, the Republican leader and permanent chairman of his party's convention, went to the rostrum to congratulate the Speaker. More applause followed.

Garner intends to confer with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt at Albany, the latter part of this week on plans for the campaign if Congress adjourns within a few days. After that he will go to his home at Uvalde, Tex., to rest a month or more.

Meanwhile, he made known he did not want any elaborate ceremony when he receives formal notification of his nomination. He added there was "not going to be any expense."

"I thought I was through with it when I sent a telegram to Representative Sam Rayburn, chairman of the Texas delegation, thanking the convention," he said.

Senator Walsh of Montana, the permanent chairman of the convention, is to notify Garner. The ceremony probably will be in the Speaker's office.

Transcanadian Fliers En Route to Lethbridge

Regina, Saskatchewan, July 5 (A.P.).—The delayed transcanadian flight of the plane Vancouver Sun, piloted by R. H. Storer and Bruce R. Ronald, was resumed from here this afternoon. They planned a single stop at Lethbridge, Alberta, en route to Vancouver.

The hopes of the pair to make a nonstop refueling flight from Montreal to Vancouver were dashed yesterday when a broken oil line forced a landing at Sudbury, Ontario.

Fiji Islander in Arctic Missing.

Ottawa, Ontario, July 5 (A.P.).—James Asesela, Fiji Islander who for twenty years followed the life of a trapper along the Arctic coast and the islands east of Coronation Gulf, was listed as missing today. Royal Canadian Mounted Police believed the man perished on an ice floe north of the Canadian mainland.

DEMOCRATS VISION ALIEN FARM TRADE

Platform Attacks Idea of Domestic Consumption Basis.

(Associated Press.)

Differing with one school of current economic thought, the Democratic platform holds with certain of the national farm groups that a potential foreign market exists for American agriculture.

Because of the postwar efforts of continental European countries to become self-sufficient in food products, farmers have been urged by a numerous group of economists, and particularly by the Farm Board, to produce on a domestic consumption basis and save their markets from the pressure of unexportable surpluses.

The Democratic platform, holding this to be a fallacious dogma, blames the Hawley-Smoot tariff and allegedly retaliatory action of more than 40 foreign countries, for the loss of export markets and increased cost of production. The policy of restricting agricultural production to the demands of domestic markets, it says, is unsound.

Further Legislation Seen.

In its pledge for effective control of crop surpluses and indorsement of "every constitutional measure" to help farmers receive at least the cost of production, leaders of several farm groups take particular delight. It opens the door to further legislative attempts for pet measures that consistently have been beaten.

Foreign disposal of crop surplus is the life stream of the export debenture and the equalization fee plans. Assured costs of production prices are the pulse beats of the Farmers Union allotment plan, and domestic prices plus the amount of the tariff is the heart of the voluntary domestic allotment proposal.

As dear to organized agriculture's leaders as an aggressive campaign for foreign markets is the plank for Philippine independence. Political freedom for the islands means an opportunity to stop the duty free competition of their vegetable oils with domestic animal products.

Condemns Extravagances.

The platform condemned "extravagances of the Farm Board, presumably its excursions into stabilization of wheat and cotton, but recommended extension of cooperative marketing—the chief purpose for which the board was created and to which it has committed $366,000,000 of its $500,000,000 revolving fund.

Farm group leaders profess to see opportunity for revived foreign markets in proposed reciprocal tariff agreements with other nations, and in the suggested world conference to restore international trade and facilitate exchange.

They hope for readjusted transportation rates in Federal control of charges by utility companies operating across State lines, and for security of farm prices in proposed Federal regulation of exchanges trading in commodities. The latter reflects recent efforts to strengthen Federal control of cotton and grain futures markets.

On the theory that agriculture suffers from the exodus of credit to financial centers, farm organizations as a group welcome the plank for more rigid supervision of banking institutions with an eye to preventing speculation to the detriment of local credits.

System of Taxation.

The platform did not go as far as farm leaders would have liked, they have indicated, in guaranteeing deposits in defunct banks, but its proclamation for a system of taxation based on the individual's ability to pay was in line with their announced program. Real estate is carrying a large share of the tax burden in most States and farm groups insist land should be assessed not on its capital value but on its earning power.

The plank for low interest refinancing of farm mortgages through the Federal loan system is in line with much of the agricultural thought in Congress. The index of farm real estate values as of March 1 was 89 per cent of the prewar index, as contrasted with 170 per cent in 1920.

Estimated at $9,486,526,000, or approximately 21 per cent of the total farm real estate value in 1928, farm mortgages have been reduced about $200,000,000 largely through foreclosures and denied applications.

There has been a pronounced shift from local lending agencies to large centralized institutions which draw their resources from a wide area.

Needy in California To Get Crop Surpluses

Sacramento, Calif., July 5 (A.P.).—The office of State food administrator to utilize the surpluses of California products in relieving "hunger, want and privation," was created today by Gov. James Rolph, jr.

Director Dudly Moulton, of the State Department of Agriculture, was named administrator, and Simon J. Lubin, of Sacramento, was put in charge of finding outlets for food surpluses in other States. Moulton said competition with regular marketing agencies will be avoided.

Waterways Convention Canceled.

Philadelphia, July 5 (A.P.).—Mayor J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, announced today that the annual convention, which was to have been held later in the year at Hollywood, Fla., had been called off. Belief that it would be difficult to get a sufficient number of members and delegates to make the trip was given as the reason.

CAPITAL HORSE WINS PLATE AT CULPEPER

Clearanfast, Entry Owned by G. P. Plummer, Declared Champion Hunter.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., July 5.—Culpeper's twenty-eighth annual horse show and racing meet closed here today, with a Washington, D. C., entry taking the coveted challenge plate offered for the hunter championship.

Clearanfast, the beautiful chestnut gelding entered by Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Plummer, of 1000 Fifteenth street northwest, Washington, won the plate for the championship. This class is judged by points won at this show in hunter classes where conformation is considered. Blue ribbons count 5 points; red, 3; yellow, 2, and white, 1 point.

Dopesters had Cathode Ray, bay gelding, entry of Miss Elizabeth Nesbit, Warrenton, Va., picked to win this plate, but Clearanfast performances and conformation scored the most points.

The two-day show opened here Monday with more than 4,000 people braving an all-day rain that slowed up all racing and jumping. The second day opened with ideal weather conditions, and about the same attendance.

Thrills in Flat Races.

The flat races were filled with plenty of thrills in the close winning of three of the five races. High Lady, Mrs. A. S. Bowman's entry in half-mile race, won both days.

Schley B., also Mrs. Bowman's entry, scored a win each day. The dope bucket completely upset in the 2½-mile steeplechase with Radio winning by a nose over King of Hearts. Seventeen entries started this race and several lost their riders in the course.

The favorite, Dyona, failed to run in money. Betting was lighter this year than has been for some years, as in most races the favorites were close shots.

Summary of Classes.

REVISING ANTITRUST LAWS IS DISCUSSED

Higher Type of Work Urged to Effect Change at University of Virginia Session.

Charlottesville, Va., July 5 (A.P.). Gilbert H. Montague, New York attorney, tonight told the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs that until a higher standard of legal and constitutional scholarship is enlisted in the study of antitrust law revision, little progress can be made in solving the questions involved in proposed remedies for the shortcomings of the laws.

Mr. Montague's speech followed an afternoon devoted to a round-table discussion on the antitrust laws. Among those participating were Landon C. Bell, S. P. Bush, of Columbus, Ohio, and Benjamin S. Kirsh, of New York.

Mr. Bush, a retired manufacturer, asserted that restraint of selling below cost provides an automatic control on competition.

Pending proposals to modify antitrust laws involve economic and political as well as strictly legal considerations, Benjamin S. Kirsh, a former special assistant to the United States attorney in New York, told the round table.

In a paper read for C. B. Ames, vice president of the Texas Co., he said that the United States will be the first country in the world to exhaust its petroleum reserves unless the present waste in production and consumption is curbed.

Other round tables on the country church, county government, and Latin-American relations were held.

State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett was the principal speaker before the round table on county government.

U. S. Asks $891,696.84 Of Richmond Railroad

A suit to recover $891,696.84 from the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad for alleged excessive profits in 1922 and 1923 was instituted in the District Supreme Court yesterday by the Department of Justice. The suit was prepared by Charles H. Weston and William G. Davis, special assistants to the Attorney General.

The Government claims that one-half of all the railroad's profits above 6 per cent should have been paid to the Government as excess profits. Despite demands for the money it has not been forthcoming, the Department of Justice said, and the suit was begun to force payment.

HUTTON TRIAL HEARS CHARGE OF REVENGE

Effort to Buy Testimony to Defeat Nurse's Case Is Put in Testimony.

Los Angeles, July 5 (A.P.).—Prosecution and defense in the $300,000 breach of promise trial of Myrtle St. Pierre against David Hutton wound up today's session with sensations popping like a string of yesterday's firecrackers.

Mrs. Lillian J. Casey, former actress, said a Hollywood health institute owner, Dr. Paul Marshall, sought to persuade her to testify that Miss St. Pierre had once "blackmailed" him.

"Dr. Marshall said he wanted revenge on Miss St. Pierre," Mrs. Casey said.

And "that man," she added pointing to Roy Watkins, Hutton's chief private investigator, "told me that if I changed my mind I should call him up. He said it would be worth my while."

Will Call Physician.

Mark P. Jones, counsel for Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, told Presiding Judge Lester Roth that he will call Dr. Marshall to the stand.

The physician, Jones said, is at Reno, Nev., "but we'll have him here tomorrow, if airplanes still fly."

Mrs. Catherine Eisoff, superintendent of a Los Angeles Maternity Hospital, declared Miss St. Pierre was a patient there in 1926 under the name of Mrs. Eben, and that Eugene Eben, a radio organist, paid the hospital bills.

Was "Great Unkissed."

Hutton, cross-examined by Lorrin Andrews, prosecuting attorney, denied he ever showed affection toward Miss St. Pierre.

"In other words," smiled Andrews, "you were just the 'Great Unkissed,' weren't you?"

"I was," Hutton replied.

Hermosa Beach, Calif., July 5 (U. P.).—Gus E. (Whataman) Hudson's recent court trouble over debt judgments had repercussions at home today when his wife, Mrs. Minnie A. (Ma) Hudson, announced she was "cutting loose" from their marriage of a year.

"I am getting out from under," declared the spirited mother of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, Los Angeles evangelist. "And I want it understood that I am not responsible for debts or other obligations he has incurred."

NEW U. S.-SOVIET RELATIONS SOUGHT

discounting the importance attached to the question in the U. S. S. R., where America's persistent refusal to recognize the Soviet state has been a constant source of disappointment.

Col. Pope, who heads the Nitrogen Engineering Corporation, discussed the matter on a previous visit to Moscow with individual officials with whom he had business contacts. His idea apparently gained so much sympathy that last night's meeting resulted.

"Soviet purchases of industrial equipment in America are being held to the smallest possible minimum because of the present lack of official relationship between the two countries," he asserted.

"Millions of dollars in Soviet orders probably would go to American business firms and industries if this situation were overcome. The absence of normal relationship between the two great countries can not but act as a deterrent to world recovery from the depression."

He added that there was precedent for sending an unofficial observer to Russia in the action of the Washington Government in dispatching such representatives to Germany and Turkey before diplomatic relations with those nations were resumed after the war.

PRESIDENT VETOES FEDERAL WAGE BILL

Follows Recommendation of Doak in Declining to Sign Measure.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday wielded his veto power, sending back to the Senate without approval a measure expanding upon an existing law requiring that wages paid to laborers and mechanics on public building projects be equal to the prevailing wages in that section.

The Chief Executive returned the bill almost without comment; his veto message consisting of only 55 words. He did attach to it, however, a lengthy memorandum by Secretary Doak, of the Labor Department, stating his objections to it.

Doak contended the measure would place upon the Department of Labor a burden that would require large additional expenditures to settle needless disputes.

"The bill should not be approved," Doak asserted. "It is obscure and complex, and would be impracticable of administration. It would stretch a new bureaucracy across the country."

The bill would amend the present wage law to require that each contract for a Government project contain a provision stating the prevailing rate of wages in the section concerned. It would expand the present law also to apply not only to public buildings, but also to other public works.

Michigan Route US-27 Urged for Taft Highway

Lansing, Mich., July 5 (A.P.).—A delegation of Michigan and Ohio residents appeared before the highway committee of the State Administrative Board today to urge the designation of US-27 as part of the proposed William Howard Taft Memorial Highway.

The delegation was informed by Gov. Brucker and Attorney General Paul W. Voorhies that the naming of highways is a legislative function. The board took under advisement the possibility of making a recommendation to the Legislature. The State has opposed the designation of highways except by numbers.

Hogs at Kansas City Reach New 1932 High

Kansas City, Mo., July 5 (U.P.).—A new 1932 high for hogs was reached today on the Kansas City live stock market. Top fat hogs sold at $4.95, a full $2 higher than the all-time low established on May 25, this year.

The steady increase of hog prices since May was heralded by experts as a definite uptrend in the value of agricultural products. The bulk of hogs sold from $4.80 to $4.90.

Rail Heads' Big Salaries Shown

Three Receive More Than $100,000 Annually, Report Reveals.

(Associated Press.)

Three of the approximately 1,200 executives of class 1 railroads of the country were shown yesterday in a report compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission to receive more than $100,000 yearly.

Salaries of a number of others ranged between $80,000 and $90,000, the commission said in its report made public by Chairman Couzens (Republican), Michigan, of the Senate interstate commerce committee.

The figures were as of March of this year. The top salary was $135,000 received by the chairman of the executvie committee of the Southern Pacific system, while the president of the system gets $90,000. The president of the Pennsylvania Railroad system received $121,800 and the president of the Baltimore & Ohio $120,000. The figures disclosed cuts in the salaries since 1929, the average running around 10 per cent.

points on which the conference is virtually agreed.

This procedure was proposed by the British foreign secretary and was supported by Hugh Gibson for the United States and Joseph Paul-Boncour for France.

Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov of Russia and Count Rudolph Nadolny, of Germany, expressed dissatisfaction, particularly emphasizing that they were unable to find any points on which the conference really was agreed.

Asked to cite such points, the British foreign secretary mentioned the banning of gas and bacteriological warfare, the setting up of a permanent disarmament commission, and some restriction on air bombing.

(Associated Press.)

Advised by press dispatches that the Geneva Disarmament Conference is preparing to adjourn until fall, Secretary Stimson yesterday expressed the opinion that the various problems which require intensive study might be considered more successfully in conferences of small groups.

The Secretary of State had been advised by Ambassador Gibson that a resolution to adjourn would probably be considered on Thursday and the recess is not regarded by the State Department as an indication of failure. Rather, it is viewed as an indication of an earnest desire to dig more deeply into the complex problems involved in the Hoover plan and other proposals presented.

HYDE SCORES ROOSEVELT'S TREE-PLANTING PROGRAM

years to grow a seedling. "But suppose there were 300,000,000 seedling trees available." Mr. Hyde's public appraisal of the Roosevelt program continued, "a million men could plant them in about three hours."

On the basis of these figures, Secretary Hyde characterized Mr. Roosevelt's national planting project as "utterly visionary and chimerical."

It may turn out, according to some of America's most celebrated political observers, that trees will not be the pivotal issue in the presidential campaign which is all but upon us. Mr. Hyde acknowledged as much by inference in his sprightly attack upon Mr. Roosevelt's "economic foresight." Yet he holds it the part of horticultural honesty to point out that "the tremendous crop which the governor anticipates would be from 25 to 60 years in maturing."

"In the meantime," he added, "the debt would have doubled or tripled."

Centered on Tree Plan.

Secretary Hyde's statement, which was issued at the Department of Agriculture, was directed entirely at Gov. Roosevelt's suggestion that the Federal Government immediately launch a vigorus program for converting "millions of acres of marginal and unused land through reforestation."

"That is the kind of work that is self-sustaining and, therefore, capable of being financed by the issuance of bonds which are made secure by the fact that the growth of tremendous crops will provide adequate security for the investment," he elaborated.

This was the only specific suggestion for economic rehabilitation advanced by Gov. Roosevelt in his acceptance speech.

Lack of Seedlings.

"This grand project is worthy of the 'economic foresight' of the governor," Secretary Hyde said. "With only a reasonable degree of efficiency, one man can plant about 1 acre, or about 1,000 trees, per day. One million men, therefore, could plant about 1,000,000,000 trees in a day. But all the nurseries in America, whether publicly or privately owned, could not possess 1,000,000,000 seedling forest trees. They probably do not possess 200,000,000. But suppose there were 300,000,000 seedling trees available, a million men could plant them in about three hours."

Mr. Hyde also pointed out that Uncle Sam now has 160,000,000 acres in his national forest preserves. This area is cared for by 6,200 men, or about one man to every 25,000 acres.

"On that basis," he said, "a million men could care for 25,000,000,000 acres—or about twelve times the entire land area of the United States."

Mr. Hyde also recalled that the 1,000,000-acre reforestation program recently sponsored by Gov. Roosevelt in New York State, gives permanent employment to but 79 men, and part-time work to others on a scale which would equal 207 full-time workers.

New York's program, approved by the voters two years ago, calls for $20,000,000 to be spent over a period of fifteen years.

Applying the same scale to the entire Nation, Secretary Hyde estimated the Roosevelt plan would cost approximately $2,000,000,000 and would provide work for 27,900 men.

In concluding what may go down as the first exchange of the 1932 presidential campaign, Secretary Hyde said the Department of Agriculture had been advancing both forestry and land conservation systematically for fifteen years.

Another foretaste of presidential cannonading came yesterday in a statement from Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who charged for the Record that Gov. Roosevelt's message of cordial felicitations to the wigwam's July 4 celebration "marked the day when Franklin D. Roosevelt made known his surrender to Tammany Hall."

If there was ever any doubt that the Republican campaign managers intend to press Mr. Roosevelt firmly on his former working alliance with Tammany, it was dispelled by Senator Moses' statesment.

"The Fourth of July, 1776," said the president pro tem of the Senate and the foe of all Sons of Wild Jackasses, "was the day when the United States declared its independence from British domination. The Fourth of July, 1932, was the day when Franklin D. Roosevelt made known his surrender to Tammany Hall."

The real heavy work on the Tammany issue is not expected to develop on the Republican side, however, until Gov. Roosevelt has made known his decision on the Seabury report on Mayor Walker.

AKRON AIDS SEARCH FOR MISSING YACHT

Airship Dispatched by U. S. Among Craft to Find Race Entrant.

New York, July 5 (U.P.).—The United States dirigible Akron, largest airship in the world, set out tonight to hunt for the little yacht Curlew, lost somewhere between New York and Bermuda with six amateur yachtsmen aboard.

Commander A. H. Dresel pointed the nose of his big ship southward at 8:36 p. m. and headed for the Virginia Capes. He awaited radio advices from the Navy Department, expected during the night, before beginning the actual search.

The Curlew, a 49-foot ketch, disappeared somewhere between Montauk Point and Bermuda. She left Montauk on June 25 as a contestant in an ocean race. Every other entrant has since reported at Hamilton, Bermuda.

The Akron was ordered into the search by the Navy Department, to assist a fleet of Coast Guard vessels and other naval craft already searching the path in which the Curlew is believed to have been driven by severe weather.

Commander Dresel, acting on instructions from Washington, delayed his departure until sundown in order to avoid stiff breezes off shore during the afternoon.

Aboard the Akron, as an observer, is Squadron Leader Booth, of the British royal air force. The Akron is manned by a complete crew.

GARNER'S DOLE.

It is dawning upon the framers of the unemployment relief bill that President Hoover can not be stampeded into approving the bill as it stands, merely because Congress is anxious to adjourn. It is the most objectionable dole bill that has ever been considered by Congress, and of course it will meet with a veto. No doubt the President will signify his willingness to approve the bill with the objectionable provisions eliminated. Congress will then have an opportunity to revise the bill. It can not pass the measure over a veto.

The proposition to which President Hoover is said to be especially opposed is that which enlarges the powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and authorizes it to lend money to any individual on his promissory note. If any Government agency is endowed with money to lend, and can lend it to anybody on a promissory note, it is easy to see that organized community, political, and all other kinds of pressure would be exerted to open the cash box. The Reconstruction Corporation would find itself the chief agent in bankrupting the Government.

The "safeguards" which the conferees have thrown around this provision are not safeguards at all. They purport to deny a loan to any one who can procure the money elsewhere, and who will engage not to use it for payment of debts. Needy borrowers would have no difficulty in breaking down these "safeguards."

Speaker Garner is credited with authorship of this scheme to set up a Government bank from which every person in the United States can borrow ready cash. The pork-barrel portion of Mr. Garner's unemployment relief plan was so obnoxious that it met with opposition from every quarter of the country, as well as from the Senate. Apparently Mr. Garner gave up hope of distributing $1,200,000,000 in pork to congressional districts where pork would do yeoman service for politicians. He then insisted upon his plan for making the Reconstruction Corporation a money-lender to all impecunious individuals in the country, first come first served. Senator Wagner seems to have accepted this scheme for the sake of saving his own pork-barrel provision. Thus, by a compromise in conference, the Garner dole and the Wagner pork were kept in the bill.

The United States is bankrupt already in common sense if it can not devise a better plan for unemployment relief. The idea that the Reconstruction Corporation can raise money on debentures, and lend it to individuals, without plunging the United States Government into debt, is mere fantasy. If it is proposed in the genuine belief that it would not increase the public debt and is not in fact a handout from the Treasury to any one who is willing to give a promissory note, then the author loses his standing as an intelligent legislator. If it is offered with intent to deceive, or with intent to arouse resentment against the President for opposing it, then it is equally vicious. The hour demands common sense and good faith on all sides, with united action to relieve the unemployment situation. The Government can not hand out cash to individuals on their promissory note unless it has been determined that the United States is no longer operating under the Constitution, but is now a Socialist state.

If the bill as it stands reaches the President, the veto that exposes Mr. Garner's attempt to set up a Government money-lending agency to individuals is apt to become a campaign document that will play havoc with public confidence in the statesmanship of the Speaker. The Democratic candidate for President can not safely defend the scheme that is fathered by his running-mate. It will go the way of other plans fostered by the Democratic House of Representatives, which were repudiated by the Democratic national convention, such as the bonus bill.

ROOSEVELT'S "TREE RELIEF."

Gov. Roosevelt's only specific suggestion as to how unemployment and economic stagnation can be relieved has been attacked by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde. In his acceptance address Gov. Roosevelt outlined a scheme to employ 1,000,000 men in the reforestation of "abandoned farms and cut-over lands." Secretary Hyde, who has charge of the United States Forest Service, points out that 1,000,000 men could plant 1,000,000,000 trees in a single day, which is several times the number of seedling trees that are available in the entire country.

The New York governor put forward this program as one experienced in the problems of forestry. Under his direction New York is attempting to reforest 1,000,000 acres over a period of 15 years at a cost of $20,000,000. This program furnishes the equivalent of permanent employment for 279 men. On this basis it is not difficult to figure out how many billions it would cost to employ 1,000,000 men in forestry projects.

One of the strong points in favor of Gov. Roosevelt's theory as he outlined it at Chicago, was its "self-sustaining" character. He would issue bonds to pay for the cut-over land and for the work of reforestation. On the basis of New York's program the cost of reforesting 100,000,000 acres would be $2,000,000,000. But it takes from 20 to 60 years for a crop of timber to mature. In that period the interest on the investment would multiply the original outlay two or three times over. Even under present conditions the market for lumber is depressed. With a $2,000,000,000 Government-owned crop maturing the timber market could be expected to remain permanently demoralized.

When considered from a business and practical viewpoint, Gov. Roosevelt's scheme to restore prosperity through a reforestation program is purely fanciful and would be a rash experiment.

Gov. Roosevelt ought to deal more rigorously with facts and practical considerations. Forestry does not lend itself to emergency action. The plan of spending a few billions of borrowed money to plant crops that require at least 20 years to mature, as a means of relieving the unemployed and overburdened taxpayers, is utterly hopeless as a relief measure. Evidently Gov. Roosevelt spoke in haste.

WHERE THE DRYS STAND.

Organized dry forces, which are marshaling their strength to fight for the eighteenth amendment, face the necessity of meeting a new situation. They recognize that it would be futile to organize a third party and stake their cause on the flimsy hope of electing a Prohibition President and representatives in Congress. The existing Prohibition party is making an attempt to draft Senator Borah as its presidential candidate, but these are extremists. Drys belonging to the old parties realize that they can accomplish nothing outside the ranks of the two major parties. They must accept the situation as it exists and make the most of it.

Leaders of the dry movement have decided that the only practical course for them to take is to support dry candidates, regardless of party affiliations. But is that course practical in the case of Democrats? No Democrat can run for Congress as a dry without repudiating the national platform and impugning his party loyalty. Assuming that some Democratic drys will be elected, they would be under tremendous pressure from the national organization to fall in line. The temptation to turn wet will be powerful after election day, as well as before, if the Democrats win. The drys doubtless realize that they would be on slippery ground in supporting any Democratic candidate, in view of the platform adopted at Chicago.

Statements that the drys will stay out of the presidential contest are not convincing. By doing so they would, in effect, promote the wet cause. Just now the drys are disgruntled, but before election day they will be found lining up for what they consider the lesser of two evils—which is the Republican plank. If they are seriously interested in a solution of the liquor problem, they can not consistenly remain indifferent when the question of outright repeal and of substituting a less objectionable amendment is at stake.

SMITH-TAMMANY-WALKER.

Gov. Roosevelt returned to Albany from the closing harmony of the Chicago convention to tackle the problem of chaotic Democracy in New York. The first puzzle to be solved was how to placate Al Smith and his friends. The great mystery of Smith's opposition to his former champion and cheer leader has never been satisfactorily explained, but it was a grudge so deep that he entered upon an eleventh-hour, forlorn effort to stop the Roosevelt movement after it had developed an irresistible momentum. Added to the old ingrowing grudge the ex-Governor now feels that he was made a victim of duplicity by McAdoo and his associates through their winning switch of California and Texas to effect the Roosevelt victory.

There is no doubt that the prestige of Gov. Smith, great as it was, has been injured by his defeat and by his sullen refusal to accept the inevitable, an attitude that he alone among prominent Democrats has assumed. That he is still a powerful figure in New York, and can influence many followers, there is also no doubt. Gov. Roosevelt, of course, knows this and from the hour of adjournment in Chicago, he and his manager, Mr. Farley, have been making tentative offers of the olive branch and both have said they expected to see Gov. Smith and endeavor to placate him. After this delay it will be considered a hollow gesture if Gov. Smith now pretends to smile upon the Roosevelt candidacy.

Tammany leaders announced upon the convention floor before leaving Chicago that they would support the ticket. They have been willing to remain "regular" and swallow the rebuff to Smith. But now another and, today, possibly an even dearer pet Tiger, comes into the picture to be intimately connected with a decision by Roosevelt. What is the Governor of New York to do about the charges against Mayor Walker and Judge Seabury's demand for his removal? Will the Governor find excuse for a verdict of acquittal and thereby stand a better chance of securing the support of his home State, or will he follow the counsel of his Progressive advisers from the West, depose the Mayor and flout Tammany as a part of the "predatory wealth" and "organized greed" of the East? It is a momentous decision for Gov. Roosevelt to make. Whether he sustains Mayor Walker or kicks him out, he will find many to criticise his action. His liberal advisers urge that he has much more to gain by ousting the Mayor, thus giving prompt demonstration that he is definitely aligned with the advanced elements of the party. On the other hand to affront the powerful Tammany in a State whose vote in November may readily decide the election, is a serious political question. Governor Roosevelt will have some important decisions to make in the next few days.

A Republican President can be elected by Republicans, but a Democrat can not be elected without Republican votes. In the ten elections from Cleveland to date no Democrat has ever received a majority. Cleveland received 46 per cent; Wilson, 42 per cent in 1912 and 49 per cent in 1916; the Democratic average is 42 per cent.

Senator Hi Johnson made a beautiful little statement in praise of Gov. Roosevelt's immediate acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination. It must be admitted that there is some advantage in completing the contract before the party has a chance to change its mind.

Speaker Garner is going on a speaking trip in the interests of the Democratic presidential team, but he won't have time to visit all the towns included in his pork-barrel bill.

The most encouraging news of the day is an apparent slump in Fourth of July accidents.

According to Secretary Hyde's version, Gov. Roosevelt can't see the forest for the trees.

FORT NECESSITY

From the New York Times.

On the farther slopes of the Alleghany Mountains among the Laurel Hills of western Pennsylvania, an appropriate contribution has been made to the celebration of the Washington Bicentennial. The discovery of the outline of Fort Necessity, hastily built by Washington at Great Meadows, has led to the reconstruction of the fort as a memorial. It was dedicated with distinguished ceremony last Saturday—Sunday being the 178th anniversary of the battle itself. It was of the first encounter in this meadow between the forested hills that Thackeray wrote:

"It was strange that in a savage forest of Pennsylvania a young Virginia officer should fire a shot and waken a war which was to last for 60 years, which was to cover his own country and pass into Europe, to cost France her American colonies, to sever ours from us and create the great Western Republic; to rage over the Old World when extinguished in the New; and of all the myriads engaged in the vast contest, to leave the prize of the greatest fame with him who struck the first blow."

Not only have traces of the original stockade been found to show the contour of the old fort; there has recently been recovered evidence that Washington, who was but 22 years old and "full of military ardor" and "vehement," was not guilty of "assassinating" Jumonville, as has often been charged. The cairn that marks his grave on the hillside not far away should be replaced by a monument to an enemy slain in fair contest. The final encounter occurred after weeks of scouting and skirmishing; amid incessant rains Washington's men were restricted to a diet of salt pork and water, which, as he wrote the Governor of Virginia, "does not inspire enthusiasm in either the stomach or spirit." On the day of the battle the men stood in water up to their knees fighting a foe four times their number.

On the morning of the Fourth of July, 1754, each side left the battlefield with all the honors of war, the young Col. Washington at the head of his troops, "drums beating, colors flying," marching off in one direction, and the French turning back toward Fort Duquesne. Washington's own report, recently located in a South Carolina newspaper, and the records of the British war department support the claim that for him and his little army the end of the engagement was not a defeat.

Whether or not it was for the moment a defeat, it was in its significance and far-flung influence a victory. Washington himself must have come so to regard it, for fifteen years later he bought the Great Meadows property, held it till his death and bequeathed it as "one of his more important possessions." It was a fragment of the boundless West which he later sought by highway and stream and canal to bind to the East. Doomed to go, as Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior" in company with pain and fear and bloodshed—"miserable train"—he turned "his necessity to glorious gain." His fort was well named and should be gratefully, proudly kept.

A Good Combination.

POST HASTE.

The only way we can be reconciled to the desertion of Senators Borah, Norris, Frazier and Johnson is to have them declare permanently "absent with leave."

A great November surprise is reserved for those who think that times of stress will lead the sober sense of the great American majority to turn for relief to freak economic and financial panaceas.

A world depression is not the result of a single cause any more than a single act can cure it. Wet arguments would be stronger if there were a single nation where liquor flows freely that is as well off as the United States today.

The Democrats will soon need for Al Smith one of the tags attached some time ago to Senator Borah: "Great publicity value, but little influence."

These fractional percentage beer bills sound as though the new product would be handled by department stores.

A case of hay fever that ought to help any candidate with the farmers appears entirely wasted on Cal Coolidge.

Gov. Roosevelt urged Tammany to join the fight against "an enemy still controlled by interests of personal greed." With what high purpose the Tiger will claw into the greedy!

After a two-hour debate all there is to both prohibition planks is the eventual possibility that the people may have a chance to vote on the question of returning the control of liquor to the States.

Gov. Roosevelt tried his best to support the Democratic platform demand for a reduction of 25 per cent, or a billion dollars, in the Federal budget. The governor's estimate of Federal expenditures at 40 per cent of the total governmental cost, National, State and local, was only an exaggeration of 50 per cent.

Are you old enough to realize that for the first time since 1912 a conservative Republican will face a liberal Democrat in November? But this time the Roosevelt on the ticket will not lead a third party, splitting the Republican vote.

Not that Al Smith couldn't say something, but he's counting ten million before he speaks.

This comparative lull is due to the fact that the opposition to prohibition stripped its jeers at the Chicago conventions. PAUL HUDSON.

HOME COOKING.

Nellie got a meal today,
Set the table, too;
Cut the bread the dainty way,
As she used to do.

She and I at table sat,
Linen white as snow.
We had every meal like that
Many years ago.

Nellie made the tea herself,
Broiled a slice of ham,
And from off the pantry shelf
Brought my favorite jam.

Why should I my joy conceal
When it plain appears
That's the finest evening meal
I have had for years?

The More Hastily Love Is Built, the More Often It Needs Repair.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE would be few divorces if people would cherish their marriages as intelligently as they cherish their homes.

There are few more delightful experiences than the building of a house and the landscaping of the grounds that surround it. It is so absorbing and so fraught with enthusiasm that life seems empty and dull when it is finished.

But when the work of construction is ended, the duty and pleasure of home-making have scarcely begun. No matter how carefully the materials were chosen nor how well the work was done, the property deteriorates rapidly if it is neglected.

The newness wears away and there is need of frequent repair. Exposed surfaces must be given new protection. Growing things must be pruned and dead wood cut away. There is a constant warfare against weeds. And after each storm there are scarred places to mend and litter to be removed.

Preserving the value of property is a life-time job. But a home well cared for enhances in value and gains in beauty as it is mellowed by time.

That is the story of marriage.

There is a growing belief in America that marriage should afford a constant "kick." Young people no longer regard it as a life-time arrangement, like the choosing of a career, but only as an experiment. And when the ecstasy of the honeymoon burns out, as all enthusiasms must, they think marriage itself a failure.

They marry again and again, for the thrill of it, and never learn that marriage has anything more to offer. They spend their lives building new houses—building hastily and carelessly because they have no thought of permanence—and desert each in turn as it reveals the marks of their negligence.

Those who build temporary structures usually are content with untested materials, quickly thrown together.

Those who build for a life-time choose their material carefully, and their joy and pride of possession increase with the mellowing years.

Congress Goes On.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

When the founders of the Union put the National Capital in a locality of hot summer weather they took a step that some cynics have since approved for a reason not originally contemplated. Congress works under great difficulty when Washington hits the season of warm spells. Congress generally likes to go home at that season. Many of our citizens like to have it go home.

On the present occasion, Congress has another reason to wish to wind up its business. The greater part of its membership has urgent business elsewhere, connected with the national campaign. Yet, despite thermometers and political bugle calls, Congress lingers on.

The financial markets do not like this. Yet it can not be avoided. Congress has enormous difficulty doing the right thing in these times. Yet these are precisely the times in which it can not adjourn with essential business undone.

Congress is right in staying in session as long as it must. But millions hope that this will not be very long.

A Real Referendum.

Duluth (Minn.) Herald.

Though nearly half the Republican delegates voted for a straight repeal proposal, it is likely that the prohibition plank finally adopted comes closer than any other proposal to covering what the people at large actually wish. Repeal is all too likely to mean reversion to the preprohibition situation, saloon and all. Repeal without a substitute for prohibition would be only half a job. It is much to be doubted whether the people as a whole want that at all.

Delay in Congress.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Distracted, no doubt, by the more entertaining show at Chicago, the Congress has become involved in a legislative tangle which forces four Government departments to begin a new fiscal year without funds. It is a quadrennial failing of our Legislature to fumble at its task while the fate of the political parties is at stake, and its defection this year need occasion no astonishment.

Perhaps the most serious deadlock at Washington is that over the House provision for retirement of 2,000 Army officers as a measure of "economy." This proposal to take a livelihood away from men who have chosen careers in the Army and to impair our national defense has been stoutly resisted by the Senate, and rightly.

Al Smith's Campaign Failed Because the People Do Not Want Mr. Raskob Secretary of the Treasury. Smith Lost a Good Chance by Not Beating McAdoo to the Switch.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The reason why the intensive campaign of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination failed to achieve the desired goal was that the people of the United States, represented by the majority of delegates, did not want Mr. John J. Raskob to be the next Secretary of the Treasury.

The cause of the Smith-Roosevelt feud was that the present governor dared to aspire to the highest honor in the power of his party to give. Had former Gov. Smith had anything "on" his former friend and political ally, he would have "split" it on the floor of the convention.

What a feather it would have been in Al Smith's cap to have beaten McAdoo to the switch to Roosevelt! Even had Smith withdrawn, as did the other native sons who faced insurmountable odds; or made a plea for party harmony, as did the many times defeated candidate, former Senator Jim Reed, he would have shown his supporting delegates from the Eastern States and his native Tammany Flatbush crowd, they were not behind a hard loser.

The Five-Day Week, Making It Compulsory to Take Saturdays Off, Would Be Hard on Government Employes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the five-day week were put into effect at once, with the choice of no other days than Saturday, it would work hardships on many of the Government employes.

Some have important business which require their presence and which can not be attended to by mail. Such business, in Washington or other cities, may take place on other days than Saturdays and can not be changed. Some wish to vote at the election November 8, in States which do not have voting by mail. Some are members of scientific and other organizations, the meetings of which they should attend. These meetings sometimes extend over a number of days.

The five-day week with only Saturdays off would necessitate taking more than 24 days off without pay, which would be an unnecessary hardship.

JESSE PAWLING.

Former Gov. Westmoreland Davis of Virginia Enthusiastic Over Democratic Prospects.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With Roosevelt and Garner as the great standard bearers, victory is assured in November for the Democratic party.

Roosevelt, who knows and protects the great resources of wealth of the country, is as deeply concerned with the forgotten man as he is with the king of finance. His courage is great; his understanding sympathetic and universal; his grasp of governmental problems intimate, and, above all, his patriotism and integrity are unquestioned.

Roosevelt and Garner typify the simplicity in our national life—Americanism at its best.

Under their leadership Democratic ideals are in safe hands and Democratic aspirations will become realities. Among the splendid planks of our platform, wise in its conception and direct and distinct in its utterance, the people are promised a solution of the vexed problems attendant upon the depression, through relief from the heavy burden of taxation caused by governmental extravagance, aid to agriculture by lowering of interest rates and otherwise, and efficiency and economy in the administration of the National Government.

The burdens of agriculture have been many, and its real political friends have been few. The great financiers readily realize now that the welfare of the commercial and industrial life of the Nation is dependent upon the products of the soil. As agriculture prospers so fares the Nation.

With the bold stand taken by the Democratic party on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment—the great moral issue of the day—and on the various economic aspects of the life of the Nation, all loyal Democrats should rally to our standard bearers in the greatest fight for the rights of the people to be made by the Democratic party in the history of the Nation.

All that is necessary to attain glorious victory in November is courage and loyalty to the party.

Why the Expense of a Plane Trip to Get Food for Veterans?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In one of your editions, you carried a story about Mr. Waters, of the bonus army, flying to New York to get a plane load of food.

It appears to me if Mr. Waters has so much money to spend for airplane rides he should be able to buy all the food necessary to feed the veterans without begging for supplies.

I do not wish to seem like a crank, but to my mind, stunts like Mr. Waters' plane trip do not make friends for the veterans' bonus.

PARTY WAR LOOMS OVER SPEAKERSHIP

Bitterness May Rend Democrats if They Win Election in November.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

War over selection of a man to succeed John N. Garner as Speaker of the House, when—or if—Speaker Garner trades his present title for that of Vice President, has started among the Democrats of the House and it may have an important bearing on the outcome of the contest for the Presidency.

There is peace and serenity in the Republican army in the House so far as the question of electing the Speaker of the next Congress is concerned. If President Hoover is re-elected it is regarded as a foregone conclusion the Democratic majority in the present House will be replaced by a Republican majority, and in that event, Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, Republican leader, will be elected Speaker. Mr. Snell has won wide respect by his forthrightness, as well as his abilities, and he is even popular with his political enemies on the other side of the aisle.

But if Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is elected President and Speaker Garner is elected Vice President there are indications of a free-for-all among the Democrats for the Speakership, and, this fight may well engender bitterness which will find reflections in the presidential election.

Southern Democrats Want Power.

At first glance it might seem the question of electing a Speaker of the next House couldn't affect the forthcoming presidential contest inasmuch as the Speakership couldn't be decided until after the results of the November elections had been inerradicably written down.

A second glance, however, discloses the Southern veterans among the Democrats in the House are itching for the saddle, reins and spurs. They believe the Democratic party is going to win the election. Already they have won victories over their Northern and Eastern brethren in the repudiation of Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse. Not only have they nominated Gov. Roosevelt, who long ago agreed to play with them and was their recognized candidate despite that he is Governor of New York, on top of that the Southern Democrats have had a Texan nominated for Vice President for the first time.

They are jubilant, but they also are hungry and they want more than they have. They feel that inasmuch as they voted for a New Yorker for President they ought to be permitted to vote for themselves for other offices, and the Speakership is one of the offices they want and are determined to get, if they can. If they agree on any candidate for any House office they can elect him. They have the power of seniority, coming from States made Democratic by the reconstruction days which followed the Civil War.

Threatened Party Disruption.

It was this Southern power which threatened before the Congress met to disrupt the party in the present session. It was the manner in which Mr. Garner met this problem which made certain his election as Speaker and added much to his power.

Mr. Garner persuaded Southern Democrats to recognize the North, West and East in disposing of party offices in the House. Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, the first and only Democrat elected from his congressional district, was chosen floor leader as a result. Mr. Garner insisted that in the interest of party harmony and future victory those Democrats who had been elected from other than traditionally Democratic States were entitled to recognition.

That decision disappointed Representative John McDuffie, of Alabama, who had been Mr. Garner's whip when Mr. Garner was floor leader. But the harmony move went farther, and Mr. Rainey selected assistant leaders, which was an unsual procedure.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, had some following for the job of Speaker. He is a veteran of 24 years' service in the House. He now is chairman of the powerful appropriations committee. He was a candidate for Speaker against Mr. Garner, but withdrew in the latter days of the contest before the House met and votes were cast.

Added Friends and Prestige.

Mr. Byrns has gained friends during this session. He has added prestige. His enthusiastic supporters already have launched a move to have him named Speaker to succeeded Mr. Garner—they are assuming, of course, a Democratic victory in November—and that has set off the warfare.

Representative Rainey, a veteran of many years' service, is admittedly one of the few men in Congress who could be closed in a room and left alone and write something like a reasonably accurate tax or tariff bill. It would seem he is the natural selection of his colleagues in the House for the Speakership. He has the added advantage of having the reputation of being a liberal and he really is a farmer. Needless to say, Mr. Rainey and those who supported him for floor leader want him elected Speaker.

Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, also is expected to jump into the fight. He did last time. Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, is expected to advance his name. He did last time. Before the fight is over the names of others will be advanced.

Representative Samuel Rayburn, of Texas, who was chairman of the Texas delegation at the Democratic convention in Chicago, and who has been a Garner-for-President supporter, also is expected to get into the fight. Some expect him to inherit the Garner mantle. They say Mr. Garner has got to repay him. But that doesn't seem as reasonable on analysis as it might on the surface.

Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, might well have been a factor had he not decided to run for the Senate. Mr. Crisp gained widespread admiration in the House in the course of his handling of the tax bill. He achieved the unique distinction of winning a personal victory at the very same time he was receiving a terrific legislative drubbing. If Mr. Crisp is elected to the Senate he will be out of the picture. If he is beaten for the Senate he will be out of the picture, too.

In any event, unless the incipient internecine war is settled soon, there may develop disagreements and animosities which, carried back into the various doubtful districts, may cost the Democrats many votes in November.

Prohibition Party Opens Indianapolis Convention

Continues to Court Borah as Its Presidential Candidate; Action on Choice May Be Taken on July 14 in Washington.

Indianapolis, July 5 (A.P.)—Indications that the big national temperance organizations are interested in sponsoring Senator Borah as a third party candidate for the Presidency were in evidence today as the Prohibition party opened its quadrennial convention.

Leaders of the party said representatives of the national groups were urging that it postpone naming a candidate until after the national conference of organizations supporting prohibition meets in Washington July 14. At that gathering the situation resulting from the Democratic and Republican repeal and resubmission stands will be studied and a campaign outlined.

Meanwhile those familiar with negotiations to obtain Borah's acceptance of the Prohibition party's nomination said they were definitely of the opinion that if a number of the big temperance groups would give him their active support he would make the race.

This, however, conflicted with the views of the Idaho senator's Washington friends. Borah is on record as believing economic issues are predominant and that the prohibition question is not the basis for a successful third party campaign.

Two men who sit on the national prohibition board of strategy attended today's meeting, saying they were there solely as observers. They were Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Canon William Sheafe Chase, of the Council of Churches of Christ in America. Both have been in consultation with D. Leigh Colvin, the Prohibition party's national chairman, who has taken the lead in the effort to secure Borah as the nominee.

The convention began today in a typical setting of bunting, State standards and organ music, at Cadle Tabernacle here.

The repeal and resubmission planks adopted by Democrats and Republicans at Chicago were lashed in a keynote speech by Clinton N. Howard, of Rochester, N. Y., who has been delivering prohibition speeches for more than 40 years. In addition he praised Senator Borah as a man who "would not compromise his convictions."

The Republican plank he flayed as "the most stupendous, titanic, colossal, calamitous, crimson, conscienceless, barbaric and cataclysmic fraud ever perpetrated upon the people." He termed the Democratic stand honest and unambiguous but "perforated with corkscrews and bungholes."

Committees worked this afternoon on drafting the platform and other details of convention business.

BORAH WARNS U. S. ON FALLING PRICES

Currency Expansion Before Congress Adjournment Is Demanded.

(Associated Press.)

Warning that there can be no return of trade unless the fall of prices can be arrested, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, yesterday demanded currency expansion before Congress adjourns.

Borah said in a statement there is no "possible way to avoid disaster under the present program" and asserted there is enough gold in this country to justify a sound expansion of the currency "to the extent of billions if necessary."

The Idaho senator has already served notice in the Senate that he will ask for action before Congress adjourns on the Glass bill to give the circulating privilege to $1,000,000,000 of United States bonds.

His statement, in part, follows:

"Congress should not adjourn until the problem of the expansion of the currency has been considered. We have sufficient gold in this country to justify upon a sound basis currency expansion to the extent of billions if necessary. We have far more than one-third of all the gold in the world. But hidden, hoarded, cornered, refusing to help in this great national crisis, the country is left paralyzed.

"The crop season is on, and it is literally true that in parts of the country the farmers can not get credit currency with which to buy binding twine. Whatever virtues the legislation already passed may possess, such as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, such legislation has not revived trade or started business.

"The forces of deflation are still advancing. Unemployment is increasing. Unless the fall of prices can be arrested, there can be no return of trade, no lessening of unemployment—and the fall of prices can not be arrested except through the change of the monetary situation.

"If we do not at once adopt measures for the expansion of currency and a further extension of credit, we will come back in the autumn facing the proposition of devaluating the dollar. There is literally no possible way to avoid disaster under the present program."

MRS. BARNEY BARES LIFE WITH STEPHEN

Tells British Jury Slaying Accidental; Says She Supported Him.

London, July 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Elvina Dolores Barney, lovely young society woman, declared in cool, calm tones on the witness stand today that she had been the mistress of Thomas William Scott Stephen, whom she is accused of having murdered, and that for almost two years she supported him.

Questioned by her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, one of Britain's eminent trial lawyers, she recounted all details—including some sordid ones—of her love for Stephen.

She had been anxious, she said, keep knowledge of her mode of life from her parents, Sir John and Lady Mullens. They were present in the Old Bailey courtroom as she testified.

The 26-year-old defendant retained her composure on the stand until her attorney asked her about the events of the night of May 31, when she gave a smart cocktail party in her flat in which Stephen was found shot to death a few hours later.

Tears choked her as she testified that Stephen was shot accidentally as they were struggling for a revolver and that before he died he kept saying: "I wish the doctor would come. I want to tell him it was an accident and not your fault."

After she had finished her story, the defense counsel turned to the judge and said quietly:

"That is my case."

The prosecution presented testimony that Stephen could not have shot himself and that it was impossible for a pistol discharged during a struggle to produce such a wound as the one which caused death.

Tomorrow Sir Patrick will conclude the case by appealing to the jury of ten men and two women to spare this daughter of a distinguished and titled father from the hangman's noose.

With the speed which characterizes British justice, this case—one of the most sensational England has known in years—was virtually concluded this afternoon after less than two days in court. There remain only the defense address and the judge's summing up.

HOOVER ASKS FUNDS FOR HIS JOB AGENCY

Danger if Work Is Stopped Stressed in Message to Congress.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover, in a brief message to Congress yesterday, asked for a special appropriation to continue the activities of the President's organization on unemployment relief.

The Chief Executive pointed out that Congress had omitted an appropriation for the unemployment organization headed by Walter S. Gifford, in the second deficiency bill recently enacted.

Should no appropriation be given, Mr. Hoover said, "there would be grave danger of national, State and local volunteer groups concluding that services such as they have rendered were no longer necessary."

The committee is composed of leading men and women in every State, whose effort has been to stimulate private aid and coordinate local activities.

Importance Stressed.

Mr. Hoover said it was "obviously of the utmost importance" that there be no diminution in the voluntary efforts "which combine the intimate knowledge of local conditions with the sense of responsibility toward fellow citizens and neighbors in distress."

The message in part follows:

"The second deficiency bill just passed omitted an appropriation for continuance of the activities of the President's organization on unemployment relief. I urgently request that Congress make a special appropriation of $120,000 to continue this work over the next fiscal year.

"The organization has secured in a large way the cooperation of industry and labor, of national social welfare organizations, and has assisted in mobilizing a large amount of voluntary funds and administering local resources to the best advantage.

Danger Is Cited.

"This organization is the only agency for national coordination and stimulation for the multitude of voluntary efforts and a clearing to these thousands of organizations with suggestions and methods for the alleviation of unemployment distress.

"Should this organizaton be discontinued, not only would its important functions of stimulation of private giving and coordination be destroyed but there would be grave danger of national, State and local volunteer groups concluding that services such as they have rendered were no longer necessary.

"The organization is made up primarily of volunteers serving without pay or expense. It is nonpartisan and representative of various economic and social groups. To function successfully it must have funds to employ a relatively small number of trained personnel, together with necessary office help.

"The appropriation requested for continuance of this organization is infinitesimal in its ratio to the large resources which are put at the command of those in distress and thus also relieves burdens upon municipalities, States and the Federal Government."

STEWART IS NAMED SCHOOL BOARD HEAD

New Members in Arlington Decide to Hold More Frequent Meetings.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 500. Clarendon, Va.

John M. Stewart was elected chairman of the newly elected Arlington County School Board at a meeting last night in the offices of county school superintendent. Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson was named vice chairman and Miss Florence Gravatte acting clerk.

The members, finding themselves new in the functions of the school board and being desirous of better acquainting themselves with the school system and its needs, voted to hold more frequent meetings during the next two months. The first meeting will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the office of the superintendent.

Members of the new board are Mr. Stewart, Mrs. Simpson and Arthur E. Wilson.

By a vote of 23 to 15 the Arlington County Civic Federation adopted a resolution favoring the county's withdrawal from the Byrd road act provisions.

The resolution was offered by Monroe H. Stockett, chairman of the road committee, pursuant to instructions received from the federation at its June meeting.

Strongly advocating adoption of the resolution, Arthur Orr declared that the State highway department has failed to keep its promise made in 1929, when it assured the citizens it would have a direct highway leading from the Memorial Bridge to Falls Church. "The condition we find today," Orr said, "is that the State is calling upon the county to acquire rights of way and then they will build the road. What assurance have we that if we turn over all our roads to the State as provided in the Byrd road bill that the State will take care of them?"

Others speaking in favor of the resolution were Harry A. Fellows, chairman of the county board; Lyman M. Kelley, member of the county board; L. C. McNemar, Hugh J. McGrath. Those opposing included Frank G. Campbell, Fred A. Gosnell, member of the county board; Julian D. Simpson and Robert E. Plymale. Hugh Reid, delegate to the General Assembly, spoke in favor of the act.

L. S. U. Official Seized On Drunkenness Charge

Baton Rouge, La., July 5 (U.P.).—George Everett, member of the board of supervisors of Louisiana State University, was arrested tonight for drunkenness and disturbing the peace after he allegedly knocked down a woman night club singer and a clerk in a hotel here.

Everett, also president of a local stationery firm, entered the room of the singer, according to witnesses, grabbed her and knocked her down.

Increased Rate on Postage To Become Effective Today

(Associated Press.)

The good citizens today will start using the new 3-cent stamps and help get the Government out of the red. The 3-center is printed in purple and bears the familiar Stuart portrait of Washington. It is identical in size and design with the 2-cent stamp of the Washington Bicentennial series except for the change of denomination numerals and omission of dates.

Two other varieties of 3-cent stamps will be used—the current Lincoln stamp of the regular issue and the 3-center of the Bicentennial series.

Four billion new stamps are being manufactured. Despite the publicity given the change in postal rates, officials say that thousands of letters probably will be mailed today and in the next few days bearing the old 2-cent variety. It takes time, they say, to get the public to comply.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Air mail users were urged today to familiarize themselves with the 3-cent rate, effective tomorrow, if they would avoid delays, by Capt. Thomas B. Doe, chairman of the air transport section of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc.

The 3-cent air mail stamps are not printed yet, his statement said, but they will be ready before fall.

Eight cents will carry a letter weighing an ounce or less. For each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce, 13 cents more will be needed. Ordinary stamps may be used for the entire amount of postage, but senders are advised to label their letters "Via Air Mail."

The rates going out of effect at midnight were 5 cents for the first ounce and 10 for each additional ounce or fraction.

Air transport lines now connect 164 major cities in 42 States. Until the last four months, the volume of air mail increased steadily despite economic conditions, Capt. Doe said.

Economy Act Retires Man Who Saved U. S. $357,248

William G. Lang, Inventor of Mail Bag Manufacturing Device, Forced to Quit After 38 Years; Commended for Punctuality.

A government, for which he claims he saved many thousands of dollars, yesterday retired William G. Lang, 67, from its service for reasons of economy.

Lang, who lives at 38 W street, left the Postal Service after 38 years of employment. He is credited with having designed a machine used in the manufacture of mail bags which is said to have saved the Government $35,724.88 annually since 1921.

On three occasions Lang was awarded cash prizes and certificates for perfection of time and labor saving devices. The last of the awards was made in August, 1928. Upon his retirement yesterday Lang received from Chief Clerk A. T. Davis a letter briefly commending him for punctuality and attendance at work.

At the office of the Postmaster General it was said Lang in the course of time undoubtedly would receive a commendatory letter from the postal head as would 2,300 other employes facing retirement under the economy act.

Lang, who incidentally is looking for another job, his savings of $12,000 having been wiped out in the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey debacle, was commended warmly in 1921 by Will Hays, then Postmaster General, for his invention of mail-bag-making device.

Kansas Weekly Again Is Barred

Publisher Charges Action Resulted From Effort to Boost Hoover.

Girard, Kans., July 5 (A.P.).—E. Haldeman-Julius, Girard publisher, announced today the solicitor of the Postoffice Department has ordered confiscation of the July 15 issue of the American Freeman, following the issuance of similar orders last week for the destruction of copies of the June 25 edition of the weekly newspaper.

The solicitor announced in Washington that action was taken against the June 25 issue because of an editorial on unemployment, which he construed as violating the section of the postal laws barring matter advocating treason, insurrection or resistance to law. Haldeman-Julius cited another unemployment editorial in connection with the newest ban.

"We claim that this censorship of the press is an attempt of the Government to harass and persecute opposition newspapers in order to make possible the reelection of Hoover," the publisher said.

Munsey said he lost $22 and his coat to two men who offered to share the profits of their business with him. All three signed a contract, he said, and started to New York from St. Marys. He was forced at gun point, he said, to leave his companions—his coat and mongy.

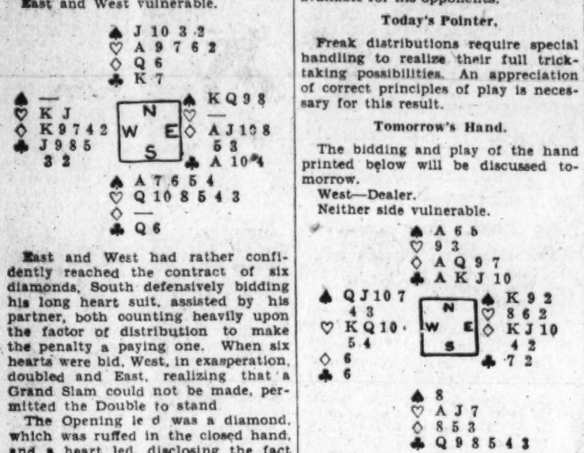
SACRIFICE BIDDING AND END-PLAYS.

OVERBIDDING is an essential element of successful Contract when your opponents hold the stronger cards. Fortunate indeed, are you if you hold hands rich in distributional values, even though they have a paucity of honor-tricks. The possession of long suits and unusual distribution frequently justifies the taking of a paying penalty, rather than permitting your opponents to score more heavily by fulfilling their own contract.

An illustration of the truth of this occurred in a recent Rubber game at a New York Bridge Club on the following hand:

East—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.



East and West had rather confidently reached the contract of six diamonds, South defensively bidding his long heart suit, assisted by his partner, both counting heavily upon the factor of distribution to make the penalty a paying one. When six hearts were bid, West, in exasperation, doubled and East, realizing that a Grand Slam could not be made, permitted the Double to stand.

The Opening lead was a diamond, which was ruffed in the closed hand, and a heart led, disclosing the fact that although he held eleven trumps, he must lose a trump trick. The last diamond was then led from Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand, and a club led, which East won with the Ace and immediately returned the suit. West was then thrown in the lead with the trump King, and, having no spades, was forced to choose between a club and a diamond return. As a matter of fact, he led a club, upon which a small spade was discarded from Dummy and the trick trumped in the closed hand. South, who was Mr. Louis H. Watson, now led a small spade to the Dummy, and East was helpless.

Through an appreciation of the principles of sacrifice bidding and extremely accurate play of the hand, involving a double end-play and two forced leads, South was able to keep his "paying penalty" to the puny figures of 200 points—a splendid balance in his favor, compared with the Slam available for his opponents.

Today's Pointer.

Freak distributions require special handling to realize their full trick-taking possibilities. An appreciation of correct principles of play is necessary for this result.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

West—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

The draped gown is coming back into the mode, most discreetly done, of course, as the draped chiffon overskirt of this black satin evening gown attests. (A Dah-ray design.)

NEW YORK, July 5.—I predict the return of draping!

Oh, well—I can predict all I wish, can't I? 'Cause you don't have to believe me, if you don't want to.

Reason I think that the draped gown will return to favor is that it is in keeping with the graceful posture that the modern woman assumes in her more formal clothes. Oh, of course I know all about the odd and ungainly, chic and grotesque positions she is taking at the beach, in her walking and outdoor hours, and all that. But have they who howl about this ever noticed the classical grace and simplicity of her posture in formal clothes?

That means the revival of draping. Because draping and classical posture are synonomous.

Oh, draping most discreetly done, to be sure! Draping that can scarcely be identified as such, but is nevertheless a movement in the right direction. Draping, for instance, like of the gown I designed for you today. The foundation is black satin most soft and supple, and, of course, not draped. But over this, further softening it and lending it the hazy mystery of night, chiffon is draped from the front down to around the hips, and allowed to fall from the last drape in fanshaped pleats which flare around the ankles as the wearer walks. The drapes of the front and back, which lend the gown a slightly empire effect, are stitched at the edges of the drapes, or pleats, really. And the satin "harness collar" is gold or red velvet, if you prefer—or flat, flat white satin gardenias. Ouvrir la marche!

Make a book cover for that ugly telephone book! And have something that is worth looking at, let alone so very much easier to handle than the telphone book itself! Dahray has made you a leaflet telling you how to make a telephone book cover in your spare finger time, one that costs very little, one that you can keep putting telephone books into year after year—one that would make the most splendid gift for a man for the coming Christmas. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you how to make it, and see for yourself if it isn't the best leaflet of the year!

Fashion French.

Cran (krahn) notch. Cravate (krah-vaht) necktie. Cristal (kresstal) crystal. Croise (krwah-zay) twilled, or braided.

'Tis "whiskered" as Wee Mamzell says, around Paris • • • that the newest shoes will have a higher vamp. That means simply that the sandal, which we cut outer and outer 'till there was nothing left but a sole and a gee-string, will most naturally give up first place to more solid shoes, of the opera pump variety, of course, and higher up on the instep.

Then rumors of the oxford persist, not only because as something seldom seen of late it is high time to revive it, but because more and more women are walking these days. Walking is healthful and beauty keeping, don't forget!

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

EXPERT SINGS PRAISES OF SUMMER SPORTS.

As those of you who have read the column regularly know, I have always advocated exercise to build body beauty, to stimulate the circulation, to further physical perfection. And there's no time like the summer to indulge in exercise, for outdoor sports beckon and there's a world of good in 'em. A great way to keep feeling fit and young!

I've known many a man of 40 or more to challenge his young son to a set of tennis or eighteen holes of golf, and very often it was the father who came out the winner after the workout. So you see, one is never too old to exercise. Doctors' orders to the contrary are the only excuses for not exercising. If the heart is weak or a similar physical deficiency makes strenuous exercising inadvisable, then take sun baths on your terrace or roof, and stretch a bit, lazily, like a kitten.

Tennis.

But if you can exercise, there are several sports to choose from—all excellent. Tennis, for instance, is very invigorating, brings every muscle into play. Recently I saw Helen Wills Moody in a match at the Huntington Hotel, Pasadena. Grace, strength, poise; studied sureness coupled with unbelievable fleetness. True, everyone can't excel at sports, but every woman can develop a liking for at least one sports hobby and play well enough to reap pleasure and benefit from it.

Did you like tennis at school? Why have you stopped? Have you wanted to play? Then why not enroll somewhere this week-end. Play a set or two early in the morning or late in the afternoon—be outdoors at twilight, the loveliest part of any summer day. Wear one of the new pique sport dresses, so easy to clean and inexpensive, too. Wear a sun visor to protect your eyes. The tennis shoes are excellent for your feet, too—a relief from the high-heeled, short or snug-fitting affairs that most women encase their feet in the year 'round. And the raising and lowering of the heels is fine for your ankles and arches and for keeping the calves of your legs shapely. The raising and swinging of the arms is excellent for arms, shoulders and bust. The backhand swing will arch your back and help to straighten the shoulders. The bending will keep your waistline slender.

All in all, tennis is an excellent exercise, a bit strenuous, so don't overdo. Stop and rest a while if you find yourself panting for breath.

Remember, too, that your skin needs compensating care; but we've already gone into that, so I won't repeat here.

Tomorrow we will go swimming; but in the meantime, if you wish my bulletin called "Laws for Looking Cool," send self-addressed, stamped envelope for some delightful summer hints.

Elsie Pierce

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NEW HORMONE SEEN AS AID IN DIABETES

Reduces Blood Sugar to Normal, but Not Below, Tests Seem to Indicate.

London, Ontario, July 5 (A.P.).—Experiments establishing the possibility of another new hormone which may have far-reaching effects on diabetes are published by the Royal Society of England.

Hormones are secretions of ductless glands. The new one appears to come from the membrane of the duodenum, that portion of the alimentary canal next in order after the stomach.

The Royal Society report is from Dr. A. Bruce MacCallum, dean of the University of Western Ontario Medical School, and Dr. N. B. Laughton. They describe several years' work at Western Ontario in which they have isolated this unidentified substance from rabbits, dogs, hogs and cattle. It is contained in a very light-weight powder from the duodenal membrane.

They classify it as different from insulin and secretin, two othe well-known hormones important in diabetes.

But like these two, and like all other hormones, a minute amount of the new stuff produces a powerful effect. The duodenal powder reduces blood sugar very quickly, either when injected under the skin or when taken by mouth.

Insulin also reduces blood sugar, but in a strikingly different way. The report points out that overdoses of insulin can reduce blood sugar below normal, with resulting severe shock that leads to death unless quickly corrected.

The new active substance seems capable of reducing blood sugar only to normal, but not below. A few tests of human patients seem to confirm this. Blood sugar is the form in human blood and its unbalance one of the difficulties in diabetes.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES ARE MILD.

THE element of fear is not of much help to health departments and physicians in the prevention of most of those diseases that alarmed society in the olden days. If a case of yellow fever were to appear in Mobile this summer a fair part of the population would say: "Well, what of it?" and go on about their work. If the health department of New York were to announce a case of cholera there, the report would not make the first page of the newspapers. If almost any citizen of Boston were told there was a case of plague in town, he would ask: "What's that?" Smallpox is now so mild that the average citizen will take no special pains to avoid it. One of the difficulties in getting people to take the trouble to prevent certain other diseases is that they do not fear their consequences.

Dr. H. B. Wood, as the result study of Pennsylvania conditions, tells us of the danger of death as a result of attacks of several of the more common contagions. What he finds to be true of that State is about true elsewhere.

If a person has measles, the chances are 500 to 1 that death will not result. The average man will think that a pretty safe gamble, and there is no use trying to change him. The health department advises him to keep the babies on home base, for measles in a child under 2 is likely to be a traged. It may go further, saying: "If you want to have measles, all right, but be sure to avoid the pneumonic season when you indulge."

Mumps is even safer for a voyage of discovery. There is only one death for every 6,000 cases of that disease. Having chicken pox outranks lion hunting in Africa. There are nearly 4,000 cases for each death from that disease. If a man wants to play with chicken pox the best advice we can give him is to be certain that he does not make a mistake and take on smallpox.

Whooping cough is very unpleasant but not especially dangerous. If a person has that disease there is about one chance in one hundred and fifty that he will escape death—and that is better odds than you get on selling platers in Derbies. Nothing in these statements about the relative safety of whooping cough applies to children under 2 years of age.

Nor is there any great danger in scarlet fever. Dr. Wood rates the chances of recovery from scarlet fever as one hundred to one. In the far south, where scarlet fever is milder, the chances of getting well are better still.

The danger of fatality in some other well known diseases is small, but not so small as the figures given above. In typhoid fever about ten cases recover for every one that dies. In some estimates the chances are given as fifteen to one. In diphtheria about only one fifteenth of the cases die. Sometimes the rate given is twenty to one.

In cerebro spinal meningitis and in infantile paralysis the fatality rate is about one in seven. Probably if we could locate all the atypical cases of infantile paralysis we would find that less than 1 per cent die from it. The fear of that disease relates to the crippling which follows in the cases that recover.

VERONAL.

G. B. K. writes:

1. Are the five grain veronal tablets purchasable in drug stores a safe sedative?

2. In excess, would veronal be fatal to an adult?

REPLY. ....

1. No. Veronal is a habit-forming drug. The veronal habit knocks the mind out worse than does the morphine habit.

2. It would. Fatalities due to veronal are frequently reported.

FIGHTING DISEASE.

H. E. W. writes: You advise G. K. to let his psoriasis take its course. With all due respect, if you had ever had psoriasis you would never have given that advice.

I have had it since I was 14 years old, or 21 years. I know it is an unconquered and little understood disease, but had I allowed my case to take its course, my life would have been less pleasant. I have fought it with all known means and I have kept it well in check. I have subdued it completely for a season. It has cost me much trouble and money, but the disease is now inconspicuous and trivial, and I am satisfied and happy. When I was in college I developed hemorrhoids. Many prominent physicians, some of them your friends, told me to accept the trouble as unimportant. I followed their advice for nearly twenty years. Finally I had an operation and, as a result am so much improved that I am sorry I did not have the operation years ago.

REPLY.

Congratulations on your willingness to spend money, time and convenience to maintain a high standard of personal health.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

IF July 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:20 a. m. and 1 p. m. to 2:20 p. m.

As the planets are so placed on July 6, adverse effects on earth in general are forecast. A depressing atmosphere may be cleared through electrical storms or wind. Most people will feel without much "push" and only the necessary duties will be attended to, and, probably, with much grumbling.

The child born on this July 6 will be too responsible and too self-entertaining to be difficult to manage. It will be full of practical jokes, but will never be up to meanness. It will have a very tender heart, and will be passionately fond of animals and should be allowed pets, if living where it is possible.

A negative frame of mind is decidedly in your disfavor, if born on July 6. You seem to have a preference for saying "No" rather than "Yes," and it has become a habit for you to raise objections to any and every thing. You allow the "cons" to override the "pros" when the reverse would be to your benefit. You also are given to disagreeing with people, for the sake of argument, and you must be approached along negative, not positive lines, if you are to be won over to the opposite camp.

Why go through life with the brakes on? Progress with a car is not made until the wheels are at liberty to speed. Ideas are the driving power of the human machine and you can not make progress without them.

You are equally sparing with your hate, and rarely excite passion in others. As a man gives, so he receives, and your life will be filled with more acquaintances than friends or enemies. You are not very optimistic, and forget that spring always follows the miseries of winter, and that the flow of the tide follows the ebb. You grit your teeth, so that it is impossible to come smiling through your misfortunes. You take things as a stoic or a martyr. You do your work conscientiously, but not always ungrudgingly.

EGGS FOR DINNER.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Eggs for dinner? But why not? Because you served eggs for breakfast? In the first place, there are so many different ways of preparing eggs that the dinner menu will hardly remind the family of breakfast at all. In the second place, the more eggs the better, especially for the children. Eggs help to make good red blood and strong teeth and bones, and supply vitamins. They are classed with such foods as meats, fish, poultry, cheese and milk—most of these the central dish of the day's heartiest meal.

Here's a menu any member of the family will enjoy: Tomato juice cocktail; omelet with chopped parsley; new peas; scalloped potatoes; junket with strawberries.

Or how about this one? Vegetable soup; shirred eggs, seasoned with salt and paprika; baked potatoes, plain or on the half shell; fresh asparagus; rhubarb betty.

The 2-year-old will delight in a supper that is dinner for the rest of the family, based on "goldenrod eggs." The eggs are hard-cooked, then the whites are chopped, mixed with cream sauce and poured over toast, and the top is decorated with the riced yolks. To keep the golden color scheme, we might serve chicken soup with noodles, buttered carrots, and an orange gelatin or whip for dessert.

The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has some help for us in Leaflet 39-L, "Eggs at Any Meal," which will be sent free on request to the bureau. A glance at the egg leaflet will suggest a variety of other dinner dishes centering around eggs: Curried eggs, baked eggs with cheese, baked eggs in tomato cups, eggs Benedict, cheese souffle, and any of the familiar ways of serving eggs for breakfast with bacon, Canadian bacon or sliced cooked ham.

PINCHOT KIN FIGHTS FOR $250,000 LEGACY

Mrs. Alice Eno Hopkinson Claims Right to Sum Under Uncle's Will.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Alice Eno Hopkinson, a cousin of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, defended in surrogates court today her right to a $250,000 trust fund created in the will of her great-uncle, Amos F. Eno.

Eno, who died in 1915, stipulated his niece should be entitled to the principal on her thirtieth birthday—August 19, 1933—unless she ceased to be a resident of the United States. The trustees applied for a ruling on his will after the legatee had married a member of the British diplomatic service and left the country.

Mrs. Hopkinson testified she wed her present husband in 1927 when he was attached to the British Embassy at Washington. In February, 1929, he was sent to London, she said, and in March, 1931, to Stockholm. In the interim she lived about six months in New York and is now residing here.

Her counsel, Frederic Coudert, jr., argued that Eno did not intend to forbid his niece from marrying a foreigner and that his client did not relinquish her citizenship during what he called her "travels."

"A diplomat is always sojourning and never has a permanent residence," he said.

Other relatives, including Gov. Pinchot and William P. Eno, of Washington, D. C., were represented as having waived their claims to the trust fund at the time of Mrs. Hopkinson's marriage. Surrogate James A. Foley reserved decision.

Furniture Money Buys 3 Presses

$50,000 Taken From Sum for Equipping Offices of Bureau Chiefs.

Luxury bowed to necessity and utility yesterday when three new map presses were installed by the Coast and Geodetic Survey. They were purchased with $50,000 taken from funds appropriated to buy mahogany furniture for bureau chiefs of the Department of Commerce.

Department heads decided that new presses were more important than new furniture and authorized the purchase of the printing equipment.

The remainder of the furniture fund, which was not used in furnishing Secretary Lamont's suite or for the presses, has been used in the purchase of 1,000 electric fans and other electrical equipment.

Old M Street House Drops Claim to Historic Marker

Doubt having been thrown upon the authenticity of stories that the old colonial house at 3051 M street northwest was the headquarters of George Washington while surveying Washington and environs in 1791, its owners have decided to remove the sign upon the building giving such historic designation.

The owners of the aged stone house, now occupied by a slate roofing concern on the first floor, and by lodgers on the second, are Miss Alice Douglas Goddard and Frederick J. Goddard, of 3077 Dumbarton avenue. They will replace the present sign on the building with one giving a brief account of its interesting early history, but making no mention of Gen. Washington.

A bill was introduced in Congress several years ago asking money to buy the M street structure so that it might be used as a museum. At that time the Citizens Advisory Council was asked to investigate the authenticity of the house's history. A report was returned that the tradition crediting the place as Washington's headquarters could not be authenticated.

The owners of the building since have thoroughly investigated the pedigree of their property and have become convinced that it may not have been the headquarters of Washington during his surveying trip here.

Her Friends Try to Help Her . . . but she won't Listen . . . she Doesn't Care

"What am I going to do . . . I'm so nervous I could simply scream." How often have you felt this way yourself?

These Hysterical Women!

CRYING . . . sobbing . . . laughing! Tears in her eyes one minute . . . smiling the next! What a state to be in! She has no control of herself . . . the slightest thing drives her to distraction.

Tired out all the time . . . overwrought . . . nerves strung to the breaking point, she tries to do her work.

She looks old, haggard. She is irritable, unreasonable. Her friends try to help her . . . she won't even listen. She has reached the point where she doesn't even care.

How pitiful it is to see her suffering . . . when it is so unnecessary!

Constant headache, backache, bearing down pains and dizzy spells are robbing this woman of youth, beauty and health.

If she would only give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a chance to help her . . . how well and happy she could be.

This simple remedy has benefited 98 out of every 100 women who have reported using it.

Don't think that your troubles are any different. Don't think that this medicine won't help you. It can! Give it a chance and watch those headaches and backaches yield to its tonic action.

The new tablets are so easy to take. They slip into a handbag as neatly as a compact. And what relief they give during those "trying times"!

But whether you prefer the Compound in tablet form or in liquid form, at least, try it! Let it prove that it can do for you what it has done for others. See for yourself what blessed help it can really be.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

INDICATING a definite trend away from crooners is the fact that the networks are not signing them for the spots being made vacant by discontinued commercial programs. The peak of their popularity was reached some time ago and now even the best of the brotherhood are becoming a drug in the market.

Several worthwhile features are being added or retained for the summer months, among them the Lewisohn Stadium concerts, the Goldman Band, Erno Rapee's symphony orchestra, the Boston "Pop" hour, Paul Whiteman's Rhythmic Broadcasts, Howard Barlow's symphony orchestra, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Cesare Sodero.

Commemorating the anniversary of the birth of John Paul Jones, naval hero of the Revolutionary War, a special dramatic production depicting the battle of the Bon Homme Richard and the British man-o'-war, the Serapis, will be heard over WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

VAUGHN DE LEATH, the "first lady of the air," a title which has come to her in recognition of the fact that she was the first woman to broadcast, is appearing at Loew's Fox Theater this week. Miss De Leath takes radio very seriously. Her general easy-going manner changes very quickly when radio comes under discussion.

From its earliest days, when Dr. De Forest was conducting his now famous experiments, Vaughn de Leath was singing over the crude apparatus then in use, and telling a none too credulous public that radio was to become a tremendous force in entertainment and education.

Miss De Leath remembers the first song she sang in that little studio atop the World Tower thirteen years ago. It was "Old Folks at Home." Since that time Miss De Leath has broadcast thousands of times. She was among the first women to figure in a coast-to-coast broadcast, and was certainly among the first to be engaged by commercial sponsors in the early days of radio.

Miss De Leath was even the manager, and as she tells it, singer, accompanist and, in general, chief cook and bottle washer of her own station in New York some ten years ago. She has witnessed the passing of the crystal set, the early stars of radio, and the heterodyne whistle of the first receivers.

Unlike the theater and film, stars of the air seem to pass across the horizon only for a short moment. But Vaughn De Leath, more like a fixed star, continues to broadcast regularly and will be heard tonight from the studios of Station WMAL. She will be assisted by Eddie Shapiro and Bert Shefter, two-piano team, in several numbers, including the Brahms' "Wiegenlied" and the popular "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea."

MERLE ALCOCK, former Metropolitan Opera contralto, will make her first appearance with the Revelers' Quartet and Victor Young's orchestra on the Goodyear program tonight. The Revelers will feature a cornfield medley, specially arranged by Frank Black.

The members of the Hurtado Marimba Band which recently made an appearance on the Columbia network are closely associated with the history and development of the marimba. Sebastian Hurtado, father of the four Hurtado brothers, was the originator of the instrument. Some 70 years ago, when still a small child, he gave some of his toys to a Guatemala Indian in exchange for a crude native musical device. In later years he experimented with it, adding several octaves, so that today the marimba has a greater tonal range than any other instrument.

HOWARD BARLOW'S symphony orchestra will play the following selections tonight (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock): Slavonic Dance No. 8, Dvorak; Allegretto from Second Symphony, Brahms; "Abduction of the Bride," from "Peer Gynt, Suite 2, Grieg; Finale from "Eine Kleine Nacht Musik," Mozart; Moorish Dance Song, Nicode; Waltzes from "Eva," Lehar.

BOHN AWAITS SON'S RETURN HOPEFULLY

Hears Rumors of Impending Release of Youth by Kidnapers.

St. Paul, Minn., July 5 (U.P.).—Every light in the mansion of Gebhard C. Bohn, the millionaire manufacurer of refrigerators, glittered tonight in anticipation of the return by kidnapers of his 20-year-old son, Haskell.

Distractedly the elder Bohn listened to rumors concerning the impending release of his youngest son, but his gaze always returned to the kidnapers' note, which said:

"Remember! Lindy notified the authorities and you know what happened!"

The abductors pulled young Bohn from his automobile last Thursday morning, pushed away the chauffeur, and disappeared. They left the note demanding $35,000 and referring to the Lindbergh tragedy.

Negotiations began immediately. Police deferred to the wishes of the family by staying away from the case. The family admitted at least six contacts had been made with the kidnapers and that several notes had been received.

William Bohn, of Los Angeles, an uncle of the youth, was absent on a mysterious mission. Police and members of the family professed not to know where he was.

The original note, which so terrified the elder Bohn, puzzled police, who could not understand how an ordinary gangster could have written it.

Its phrases were polished and its instructions were explicit. It mentioned license numbers B-54-480 on one of the Bohn automobiles and referred to a "club bag" in the home. The note told Bohn to put the money in the bag, to place the bag in the car and to drive to a destination which would be revealed later. Members of the family and the authorities wondered how the writer of the note could have been so familiar with articles inside the Bohn estate.

Luke Lea's Sentence Is Deferred by Writ

Asheville, N. C., July 5 (A.P.).—Judge P. A. McElroy, resident judge of this superior court district, tonight signed a temporary restraining order staying execution of the sentences of Wallace B. Davis, Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher, and Luke Lea, jr., convicted of conspiring to defraud the Central Bank & Trust Co. here of more than $1,000,000.

Robert R. Williams, counsel for Davis, former president of the defunct bank, said the stay was granted when he appealed for an opportunity to present to superior court a plea for a new trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence and irregularities at the first trial.

WORLD FLIERS DEFY FOG OVER ATLANTIC

they encountered the fog. They tried to climb over it and then to get under it, but finally were forced to fly blindly for an hour and a half.

They sighted no land after becoming fogbound until they reached Newtown, in Bonavista Bay. They were forced to drop a note near Cape Freels to ascertain the direction to Harbor Grace, and then overflew their destination by more than 100 miles before they turned around and finally landed here.

They said they had a good tailwind throughout and made about 150 miles an hour. The weariness of their trip was soon dispelled and they got down to business of refueling their plane, which had only 50 gallons of fuel when they landed.

The weather at Harbor Grace was very bad; worse, in fact, than on any previous arrival here of an ocean plane.

After taking on refreshments for their long ocean hop, the fliers got away at 4:59 p. m., Eastern standard time. They said they hoped to make Berlin or some other European port in 15 hours, although they took on sufficient gasoline for 25 hours' flying.

Before their departure from Harbor Grace reports were received that bad weather extended half across the ocean, but that the remainder of the way was experiencing fair weather.

Their food supply included sandwiches, chocolate, oranges and water. Both fliers appeared fearless of the bad weather reports, and were impatient to get away. Unlike other transatlantic fliers who have headed southeast, Griffin and Mattern flew due east and then crossed to southeast before being lost to view.

They hoped to break the mark of Post and Gatty, whose record for a round-the-world flight is 8 days 15 hours 51 minutes. Post and Gatty's time from New York to Harbor Grace was 6 hours 52 minutes, while the time of Griffin and Mattern for the same leg was 10 hours 37 minutes.

Armed with plenty of confidence and a "make it or bust" spirit the two fliers left New York at dawn this morning. They had no radio, lifeboat, parachutes or fire extinguishers. Their itinerary called for Harbor Grace as the first stop, across the ocean to Ireland, across Europe to Siberia, across Asia and then up the North Pacific to Alaska and down the North American Continent home.

Mattern has had an adventurous career. He started out as a drummer in an orchestra aboard a ship on the Pacific. He became an Army pilot in Honolulu and then went to Brownsville, Tex., where he flew cargoes of fish to Mexico City. Finding this lacked adventure, he barnstormed all over the world. A year ago he flew a refueling plane over Alaska for R. L. Robbins and H. S. Jones when they atttempted a Seattle-Tokyo flight. His home is at Fort Worth, Tex. Griffin was a wartime aviator and flew almost twelve months without a mishap. He is a native of Barton, Miss., but has lived in Lexington, Okla.

The airplane they are flying is No. NR 869 E and was owned by Carl Cromwell, of San Angelo, Tex., who was killed in an automobile accident a year ago. The plane is of 550 horsepower and has two huge gasoline tanks and includes several compasses and a pair of ice indicators among its instruments. The fliers communicate by notes.

William Carson, Lumber Leader, Dies.

Burlington, Iowa, July 5 (A.P.).—William Carson, 72, president of the Boise-Payette Lumber Co., died today at his home here. He was one of the best known lumbermen of the Pacific Northwest, his company supplying the market with one of its principal sources of Western yellow pine.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FOR those sturdy seafarers who are able to fight off the ravages of mal-de-mer for as long as six days at a time, the French Line has arranged a considerable amount of a different kind of raillery—if you know what I mean.

Sophie Tucker, international singing star; Jack Osterman, hit of many Broadway musical productions; Charlie King, star of stage and screen, who was featured in "Broadway Melody;" June Knight, Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha" singing sensation; Milton Berle, New York RKO-Palace Theater headliner; Ray Dooley, comedienne of Raymond Hitchcock's "Hitchy-Koo," "Sally, Irene and Mary," "Honeymoon Lane," and other musical shows; her husband, Eddie Dowling, producer and stage and screen star, and Arthur Tracy, known to radio audiences as "The Street Singer," are among the galaxy of leading stage, cinema and radio artists who have been booked as the entertainment feature for a series of "Triangle Cruises," six-day ocean jaunts with a New York-Bermuda-Halifax-New York itinerary. The S. S. France will make six of these short cruises during July, August and September, and the Paris is scheduled, too, for one trip in mid-July.

Other well-known artists booked for personal appearances on these summer cruises are Grace Hayes, prima donna; Eddie Conrad, comedy headliner; Baby Rose Marie, juvenile artist; Gomez and Winona, dancers; the three Ritz Brothers, featured in Earl Carroll's "Vanities;" the Aber Twins, recently of Ziegfeld's "Smiles;" Dave Vine, vaudeville headliner, and the three Carson Sisters.

Even with all these singers aboard, it is doubtful if a majority of the passengers will be aware of anything they do—beyond the first few bars!

At that, it's a very elegant way for the actors to wave aside the depression and tide things over until they're docked again!

In the huge lobby of the Panorama Building, where Harry M. Crandall and his associates are soon to exhibit the "Pantheon de la Guerre," at New Jersey avenue and C street, will be shown 368 smaller studies of the celebrated individuals who appear in the foreground of the main canvas, made from life by the same distinguished artists. This main canvas, by the way, measures 402 feet in circumference, is 45 feet high and weighs, when packed, 12½ tons.

The Columbia Players, one of the Capital's more prominent amateur groups, it seems, holds an election of officers now and again. The last resulted in something surprisingly like this: President, Willard Miller; vice president, S. Allen Foster; treasurer, Iva Holland; secretary, May Cole; board of governors, Orris Holland, Frank Jamison, Robert M. Miller, jr., Philip Cole and Dorothea Lewis.

The Players are planning a moonlight picnic and gala program for the middle of this month as a fitting finale of a most successful year, to be held at the home of the group's director, Aurora Poston.

Tonight at 8:15 o'clock, at the National Sylvan Theater in the Washington Monument Grounds, the Summer Festivals of 1932 will be inaugurated by the Lisa Gardiner Dancers and the U. S. Army Band, Capt. W. J. Stannard, conductor, presenting a joint program of music and dance, open to the public. As is the custom, a limited number of reserved chairs will be available at modest cost.

Just a reminder that the bill changes at RKO-Keith's today. Constance Bennett and Lowell Sherman, in "What Price Hollywood" supplanting the python and the tiger in Frank Buck's "Bring 'em Back Alive"—which it certainly did, if you mean box office receipts!

You can't fool the weather! Knowing it is a campaign year, if you notice, it is alternately blowing both hot and cold!

G. O. P. TO TEST DEMOCRATS ON DRY REPEAL PLATFORM

alibi by voting against the bill on the grounds that it would mean the end of the home loan bank bill," Mr. Bingham continued. "I am sorry, it can't be an out-and-out wet-and-dry vote, but those that have that kind of an alibi will have a great deal of explaining to do later."

Senator Bingham will try to get a vote on his beer proposal today. Both Democratic and Republican leaders are opposed to it, and a motion will be made that it be divorced from the home loan bank bill and consigned to committee. The vote on this motion will be regarded by Bingham as a test vote on beer.

Watson Indicates Fight.

"This is a home loan bill, not a home-brew bill," said Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, thus forecasting the argument that is to be made against Mr. Bingham's plan.

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, may offer a substitute for the Bingham amendment, one calling for 2.75 per cent beer with a $6-a-barrel tax.

In the House yesterday the Republican wet bloc took steps to challenge the Democrats on that side of the Capitol. Representative Fred Britten (Republican), of Illinois, sought to get an immediate vote on a beer bill, but was ruled out of order by Speaker John N. Garner, the new Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Wet Caucus Called.

Later Britten and Representative Fiorella LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, called a caucus of the wet bloc for this morning. The prospect is that, unless the Senate approves the Bingham rider on the home loan bill, the House will escape a vote on beer at this session.

In the Senate yesterday, Senator Warren W. Barbour (Republican), of New Jersey, asked unanimous consent for consideration of a motion to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of his repeal resolution, and thus force a vote on the measure.

The one objection needed to block Barbour's motion was entered by Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, "father" of the eighteenth amendment. Wet Republicans duly noted this and will recall it in the campaign.

Amendment Defeat Expected.

While the Senate vote on the Bingham beer amendment is expected to be close, few politicians at the Capitol expect the amendment to go through. In view of the wet wave that rolled over Chicago recently, however, these politicians are chary about making predictions.

But Senate approval of the Bingham plan would by no means start the breweries. There would still be the House and President Hoover.

Although some Democratic strategists are said to be fearful lest President Hoover's approval of a modification measure deprive them of a beneficial issue for November, there is a wide belief in administration quarters that President Hoover would veto such a bill, even though it carried down with it the home-loan measure he so strongly favors.

On the whole, unless Congress remains in session—and it is now likely that it will finish up this week—the chances are slim that action toward repeal or modification will be taken.

Wets Are Gleeful.

As matters stand, however, the militant wets are gleefully proceeding with the business, as they view it, of putting the remaining drys in both parties "on the spot."

Yesterday Senator Tydings repeatedly urged Senator Bingham to draft a submission plank fashioned after the Chicago Republican plank. Bingham, who led the repeal submission fight at Chicago and lost out to the "straddle" plank, said he would leave that to others.

The debate afforded Senator Henry Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, an opportunity to characterize the Republican plank as one "peppered in political propaganda and bias and salted in the tears of political senility." This came when Senator Gore, Oklahoma Democrat, offered a resolution directing the judiciary committee to draft two repeal amendments, one based on each of the party platforms.

"It is not within the literary or clairvoyant powers of any senator to draft an amendment in compliance with the Republican plank," said Ashurst.

Since the conventions Senator George Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of judiciary committee, has come out for modification, but Bingham admitted in the debate that the task proposed by Gore would be a "terrific" one for the Norris committee. Bingham said that two dry members of a subcommittee of that body have refused to act on repeal proposals. He declared, however, that he expected to get "a solid Democratic vote" for a repeal proposal now awaiting action.

Tydings said he thought Mr. Bingham would get his wish, but insisted on knowing what was to be done about the Republican "literary gem."

The Marylanded persisted in direct questioning of Republican senators until Senator Smoot, of Utah, got to his feet with this dramatic assertion:

"I want the whole world to know that I am a prohibitionist. I'll live it until I die."

When Mr. Tydings pointed out that Mr. Smoot, then, was not in line with the Republican platform, Mr. Smoot shouted:

"I don't care what the platform is. I'm a prohibitionist, not by word of mouth, but by practice. I believe the curse brought into the world by liquor is worse than any other."

G. O. P. Plank Called Political.

"But the fact still remains," Mr. Tydings continued, "that no one arose, and that testifies that the Republican plank was wholly political."

Seantor Barbour, of New Jersey, balked for the day on his repeal effort by Senator Sheppard, spoke of the "courage" shown by the present Senate on other issues. He declared prohibition was as much on the minds of the people as any other question.

Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, with a beer-taxing bill of his own in his pocket, came back to Washington today with the comment that "there is no chance to get it or any other beer bill through at this time of the session."

Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, announced yesterday that his organization—made up of representatives or 30 or more dry organizations—would meet here July 15.

"It is possible and I think likely," Dinwiddie said, "that we will agree on the campaign at the meeting here. I think we are tending now toward unanimity."

Discovery of Gold Treasure Denied

Official on Cocos Island Discredits Story Pirate Cache Located.

Vancouver, British Columbia, July 5 (A.P.).—Reports received today said treasure hunters on Cocos Island, off the coast of Costa Rica, with the aid of a new metal diviner, have located a spot in the bed of Wafer Creek under which they believe lies the famous Devonshire treasure, buried there by Capt. Graham, of the British warship Devonshire, after that adventurous seaman turned pirate.

Commenting on "exaggerated reports" from various sources telling of the actual discovery of $60,000,000 in treasure, J. G. Turgeon, vice president of the company operating on the island, denied hidden gold had been uncovered.

So far as the Vancouver officers of the company know—and they depend on the rather temperamental wireless set on the island—the diviner has defined a spot 18 by 12 feet in the creek bed. From this place the instrument shows a consistent and continuous reaction.

COMFORTS PROVIDED VETERANS' FAMILIES

Former Marine in Charge of Shelter; Cots and Bedding Donated.

"The Marines have landed and have the situation well in hand." This famous war-time time slogan of the United States Marine Corps is true again in the case of Private Carl Clayton, late of the Sixth Marines—and of Belleau Wood—now in the B. E. F., who has been placed in charge of the new shelter for women and children of the army at 200 Fourteenth street southwest.

Clayton is engaged in fighting the enemies, dirt, despair, poor sanitation and little food and in organizing the shelter. Twenty-six children and their parents are sheltered there.

After a talk with Clayton yesterday the Woman's Naval Service, which has opened temporary headquarters in the Quray Building, Eighth and G streets northwest, issued an appeal for blankets, other bed clothing, women's and children's clothing in good condition, soap, disinfectant, mops, tooth paste and towels. Items will be distributed through the Salvation Army, directly to the women and children at the shelter.

Through the Woman's Naval Service yesterday 100 Army cots were contributed by a generous friend of the bonus men, as well as enough mosquito netting to keep the flies and mosquitoes out of the former Government building. Practically all of the children and adults had been sleeping on the linoleum-covered floors.

A radio sent by the same friend brought bedtime stories and music out of the ether, much to the delight of the little ones.

Clayton and his wife hitch-hiked from the Ozark Mountains in Missouri.

Surety Firm Must Pay On Losses by Banker

Cincinnati, July 5 (A.P.).—A Federal court jury today found that the Aetna Casualty and Surety Co., Hartford, Conn., must pay a $100,000 bond it issued to the defunct Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust Co. of Cincinnati.

The bond was to guarantee faithful performance of duty by the bank's officers and employes. Witnesses testified the Cosmopolitan lost approximately $450,000 through transactions between Herbert J. Dorger, its cashier, and Amos W. Shafer, former Cincinnati branch manager of H. L. Doherty & Co., New York brokerage concern. Shafer was sentenced to ten years in prison.

Auction of Idle Workers Planned in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, July 5 (A.P.).—The City Park Commission today granted permission to Louis Byrns for the erection of a "slave block" in the Los Angeles plaza as an aid to the unemployed.

Byrns, welfare worker and former auctioneer, said that beginning Thursday and continuing indefinitely he would place candidates for jobs on the block, and auction their services to the highest bidders.

Killings Admitted By Projectionist

Californian Confesses He Shot Man and Then Stabbed Wife.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 5 (A.P.).—Police said tonight that after nearly 24 hours of questioning, Erwin Liner, 45-year-old film projectionist, had confessed the slaying last night of Edwin H. Clarke, 53, and his wife, Mrs. Kendaci Clarke, 55. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke were killed in their home, where Liner had been staying.

Liner admitted, police said, that he shot Clarke through the head and then battered and stabbed Mrs. Clarke to death.

The tragedy was preceded, he declared, by a quarrel in which Clarke accused him of improper attentions to Mrs. Clarke and in which both attacked him. Clarke was a retired official of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co.

Legion Drive for Jobs Passes Million Mark

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—The American Legion has reached its goal of a million new jobs for the unemployed, the national employment commission announced tonight.

The campaign closed officially on July 1 with a total of 996,302 jobs, and additional returns from the Middle West and the Far West pushed the project over the top. New York State ranked first in the final tabulation, with 79,427 jobs; California second, with 71,608, and Illinois third, with 67,153. Communities active in the campaign numbered 3,177 and the total in cash or pledges for "made work" on State and municipal projects was $51,931,843.

"Merrily We Go to Hell" Author Jailed by Choice

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Dorothy Fletcher, Santa Monica, Calif., author of "Merrily We Go to Hell," chose jail instead of a $50 traffic fine in the Bronx today because she wanted the experience. "It may help me with my writing," she said.

Patrick Joseph Conway, the complainant, said she dented the fender of his new automobile and sped on without stopping. He pursued her a mile, he said, before he could force her car to the curb and halt it. She pleaded guilty and will spend three days in the Bronx County Jail.

MEAT ARRIVES FOR VETERANS

distributed handbills calling for a rump election at the Capitol to displace Waters. As they left the Monument Grounds the radicals were talking for dethronement of Waters.

After listening to attacks by their leaders on governmental agencies and the Red Cross for failure to furnish food and equipment for their stay here, the veterans sang "America" and dispersed in an orderly manner to their billets.

Most of the men had retired when a group of Communists tried to agitate a few of the remaining veterans who stood on the steps of the Capitol. This move was promptly squelched, the attempt being blocked by the veterans police who remained to keep order, and who simply asked the bonus expeditionary forces not to listen to the speaker. They acceded.

Bonus Opponents Booed.

Criticisms of President Hoover and governmental agencies brought bursts of boos from the motley crowd of veterans, and shouts of "Give 'em the other barrel," &c., greeted each denunciation of the opponents of the bonus.

Thunderous cheers greeted the announcement of the defeat by 100,000 votes of Senator Morrison, of North Carolina, who voted against the bonus bill when it was killed by the Senate. They cheered again when leaders reasserted the intention of the army to "dig in" and remain until the bill is passed.

In his denunciation of "dictatorship," Foulkrod urged that the proper way to hold an election is by secret ballot, and inferred that another election should be held. There is every indication that a revolt against Waters is in the offing.

The parade was led by Doak E. Carter, of Cleveland, Ohio, chief of staff of the army. He was clad in infantry officer's coat and breeches, without insignia, and riding boots with spurs. Then followed the decorated men of the Army, bearing aloft an American flag, that once had been gold-fringed, but was almost dark brown with dust.

4,701 Counted in Line.

The flag was tacked to a piece of wood and the men followed on behind. Actual count showed 4,701 veterans in line, as well as 17 women and children. Leaders of the Army claimed there were 16,000 veterans in line. A few thousand did not parade but joined their comrades at the Capitol. On the basis of a census made yesterday police said there are 11,760 veterans in the Capital while the army claims 22,000.

They marched along in sprightly steps, some clad in overalls, others in baggy trousers and soiled shirts, and others in faded olive drab. One woman led a regiment of the men. Several dogs, camp pets, were in line, and a burro was placed in the line at the Capitol.

They were routed to the north of the Capitol and when they reached the Senate Office Building they disbanded and filtered through the grounds to the Senate wing. Chief of Staff Carter spoke to the men and urged an orderly demonstration.

As cheers and boos punctuated the remarks of the veterans' speakers, the Senate continued its course of business, unperturbed by the shouts of the men that occasionally reached the chamber.

Jack Daily, one of the leaders of the army, told the men that "the unemployed people of the country are looking to you for relief. We must begin to act politically. Our institutions must be preserved and it is up to us to avoid revolution and bloodshed."

Other Food Due Today.

The food which arrived last night will be augmented by two truckloads of meat which started last night from New York, donated by the Adams Hat Stores. Waters will appeal in theaters and over the radio in New York for funds to carry on the occupation of the Capital.

Irked because the bonus army parade delayed him an hour and 40 minutes in keeping an appointment at the District Building, Representative Frank L. Bowman charged that the traffic congestion was due to the "inefficiency" of Brig. Gen. Pelham Glassford, chief of police.

An organized medical unit for the bonus expeditionary force was expected to arrive momentarily at the bonus camp from Los Angeles. The advance guard arrived yesterday by airplane, and another group, including four war nurses who served overseas, is on the way. The unit will be established at Camp Marks.

Headquarters of the army last night vigorously denied that Commander in Chief Waters had paid any money for the plane flight to New York to obtain funds and food for the army. The plane was offered by a commercial company, headquarters said.

HOOVER AND CONGRESSIONAL CHIEFS CONFER ON RELIEF

newspapermen as he left the White House he would inform the House today that "the President will not approve this bill." He added that today's conference would seek a compromise in final form.

Senator Watson was almost explosive in his statement that no final agreement had been reached, but was hopeful that today's session would produce accord so that Congress might not have again to postpone adjournment this week-end.

Besides the Democratic and Republican leaders in both Houses, President Hoover invited Secretary Mills and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to participate in the compromise conference. Jesse H. Jones and Wilson McCarthy also were present as representatives of the R. F. C. board.

Senators present for the discussion were Robinson, Wagner, Hardison and Glass, Democrats, and Watson, Reed, McNary and Norbeck, Republicans. From the House came Garner, Crisp, Collier and Rainey, Democrats, and Snell, Hawley, Treadway and Bacharach, Republicans.

Senator Brookhart, a member of the Senate conference on the disputed measure, also was invited, but was unable to attend the White House meeting.

Dole-Loan Objection.

The principal emphasis in the President's statement of his objections to the dole-loan plan centered last night on the provision of the bill to throw open the doors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to every sort of loan, both to individuals and corporations, without regard to the prospective ability of the applicant to handle the advance on a repayment basis.

Although no official word came from the conference room, the President is understood to have characterized this provision bluntly as an indirect dole and to have suggested that if the Democratic members of the House wished to sponsor a Federal dole they should advance that project by its real name.

On the Democratic side there is a strong disinclination to abandon the Garner measure in any of its vital terms now that the author of the bill stands as the party's vice presidential nominee. It is for this reason that it was deemed necessary to continue the compromise negotiations today through a subcommittee, which would not include Mr. Garner, but still would give voice to Senator Wagner, the coauthor of the bill.

Genial Atmosphere.

On the Republican side last night there appeared to be a general disposition to avoid any action which might be interpreted as an affront to Speaker Garner, and it was this genial atmosphere that gave birth to the plan tentatively accepted to work out the present bill with a first eye on relief rather than the necessities of presidential and vice presidential politics.

If today's White House conference nets a substantial agreement on principles, the relief bill can be whipped into final form for presentation to the House tomorrow and passed on for the President's signature before the end of the week. In that event Congress might adjourn Saturday. The Home Loan Bank bill, now before the Senate, and the Army appropriation bill are the only items of essential legislation to be completed. Both have been forced behind the Wagner-Garner bill for legislative leverage.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED IN KILLING OF FAMILY

Euel Lee, Sentenced to Be Hanged, Wins Appeal on Jury Challenge.

Annapolis, Md., July 5 (A.P.).—A Negro, convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged, was granted a new trial by the Maryland Court of Appeals today because Negroes are excluded from jury duty.

In its unanimous opinion, the court held that the Baltimore County Court throughout the past 26 years showed "an established practice, or system, in which no opening is left for members of the Negro race to obtain places on juries, and that this amounts to exclusion in the constitutional sense."

The Negro, Euel Lee, was charged with killing Green K. Davis, an Eastern Shore farmer, Mrs. Davis and their two daughters, after Davis had discharged him.

The Court of Appeals found no fault with the trial of the case other than inability of Negroes to qualify for jury duty. Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond, who wrote the opinion, said:

"There is no question of error or lack of fairness in the trial by the jury as ultimately formed."

However, on the point on which the new trial was granted, he said:

"The evidence with the long unbroken absence of Negroes from the juries selected, seems to show an established practice, confining selections to white men as effectually as if such a restriction were prescribed by statute."

While Negroes have been denied jury duty in many counties of Maryland, it is not uncommon for them to be summoned for duty in Baltimore.

Lee's attorneys were retained for him by the international labor defense.

Banker's Daughter Sued By Wife for Alienation

Los Angeles, Calif., July 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Clara L. Bates, wife of George C. Bates, a retired banker of Columbus, Ga., today filed a $200,000 alienation of affections suit against Hallam Burr, motion picture actor, and his wife, Elizabeth. Mr. Burr is known on the screen as Hallam Cooley. Mrs. Burr is Bates' daughter by a prior marriage.

The complaint said Mrs. Burr threatened to commit suicide unless her father separated from his second wife, and the actor and his wife are accused of breaking up Mrs. Bates' home.

Pollard to Support Democratic Ticket

Richmond, Va., July 5 (A.P.).—Dismissing the Democratic repeal plank with the assertion that no matter which party is victorious in November, the prohibition question will have to be resubmitted to the States for final decision, Gov. Pollard today announced he will devote his hearty support of the Democratic ticket, and the platform plans for a "fair deal to all classes," and the "restoration of the country to the degree of prosperity which is our rightful heritage."

Lenz Quits Bridge Group In Row Over Culbertson

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Sidney S. Lenz, the bridge expert, today announced his resignation from Bridge Headquarters, Inc., sponsor of the "official" bidding of contract.

Lenz resigned, it was learned, because of the recent settling of hostilities between Bridge Headquarters and the organization of Ely Culbertson, and what he termed "the impending indorsement of the Culbertson system of play by the 'official' group."

DICKEY INDEFINITELY SUSPENDED BY LEAGUE HEAD

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

SIXTEEN THOUSAND baseball fans who sat in on the Nats-Yankees embroglio Sunday saw something that 72,000 fight fans paid for in vain at Long Island City two weeks ago, when Sharkey and Schmeling waltzed to the $450,000 tune of the turnstiles.

But the unfortunate habit of belligerent Bill Dickey, who leads with his right, may write a new chapter into the baseball records, which already show pennants lost on wild pitches, "Merkle" plays and sundry other untoward incidents. If the Yankees stumble in their chase for the American League bunting, it may well be because Dickey aimed a punch well but not wisely.

The bellicose Mr. Dickey, who showed rare courage in sloughing Carl Reynolds when the Nats' outfielder was not aware of his presence, was, at that writing, a particularly valuable member of the New York cast, but it is barely possible that he punched the New York club out of the pennant race.

Dickey was one of the few who were carrying the New York team along at an almost unstopable pace, what with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig having fallen down on their slugging duties. Dickey's .332 average had much to do with boosting the Yanks to their present high station.

Unless justice miscarries, and President Harridge's preliminary action in suspending Dickey indefinitely indicates that it will not, the Yanks will be minus the services of Dickey for at least six weeks, the time that Reynolds will require to recover from the broken jaw that he incurred when the New York catcher detected the excellent opportunity to lead with his right at a time when Reynolds was otherwise preoccupied and had no chance to defend himself.

Arndt Jorgens, Dickey's understudy is just a Jersey City catcher. He's no Dickey, either behind the plate or with a bat and his paws, and when a couple of Yanks are champing on base waiting for one of Dickey's lengthy wallops, Manager Joe McCarthy, perhaps, can reflect that Dickey's brief moment of revenge wasn't exactly worth the consequences.

The home run that Ruth hit on Sunday was his first in eleven days. Gehrig's hitting has been sadly off color. The Yankees owe their present high standing to the work of fellows like Dickey, Lazzeri and Combs.

The Nats did the American League race a distinct service by slapping the Yankees down twice in the twin bill Monday. The Athletics now are but seven and a half games behind, in a virtual tie with the Tigers. The Nats also show signs of awakening. Three of their last four games have been lost by the Yankees, who show distinct signs of hitting a slump. Dickey's absence is not calculated to help them regain an even keel.

With the invasion of the Cleveland Indians today, the Nats are face to face with another personal enemy. Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder, who has been writing for a syndicate has consigned the Nats to the second division with the notation that the Washington hurlers are just a bunch of "batting practice" pitchers. He'll probably get a look at a lot of pitches that will be high and inside during the current five-game series.

Shikat Slams Wilson in 27 Minutes

McCready, Komar, Kley Are Victors at Bolling.

Hagen in "Iron Man" Stunt Gets a Draw and a Loss.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BOLLING FIELD'S Little Theater of Rassling reopened for the summer season last night with a very fine assortment of ham actors and good rasslers on the skit, which was a dramatization of a paraphrase from the Spanish Inquisition and Billy Watson's Beef Trust.

The leading man, Richard Shikat, was not received very well by the crowd of about 1,000, but the patrons threw nothing more tangible than taunts at him as he put the bee on Doc Wilson in 27 minutes. Shikat, giving one of the few sincere performances on the program, was miles better with one arm than Wilson was with all of his faculties. How they stretched it out 27 minutes, and still maintained a measure of interest, is still another problem to beset a harried mankind.

Shikat Starts To Work.

Shikat went immediately to work on Wilson's legs and soon had them tied in a knot, when they never quite unwound. Doc did his customary "resurrections," wherein he plays dead and then unleashes a flying butt, but Shikat did not take many of them cleanly. Wilson rolled out of the ring near the end, and bounced pretty hard on the cement floor around the dismally lighted ring. Shikat easily dumped him when he climbed back.

Fritz Kley, singing an obscure part in this elephant opera, did his usual show-stopping act, made possible through an Almighty who bestowed upon this horny-eared German one of the most supple torsos to be found outside of a hot-water bottle factory. Kley threw George Hagen in 18 minutes of old-time shimmy dancing high kicking and Race Street Burlesque.

It was Hagen's second appearance of the night, for he appeared to do battle with Kley still begrimed from a 30-minute draw match with Scotty McDougal. Kley was supposed to be assisted by George Manich, but Muggsy Morris, the excellent umpire the Bolling Field people won in a turkey raffle, announced that Manich just telephoned that he had been in an auto accident and would not be able to appear. The ovation which greeted this announcement was one of the most amusing incidents the local mat world has ever witnessed.

McCready Sluggish But Wins.

Earl McCready, who ate two and a half watermelons the night he rassled Shikat under Joe Turner's baton nearly a month ago, was still a bit sluggish in his match with Mattress Kirilenko, but he managed to win in 25 minutes. Bull Komar beat Mike Romano in sixteen minutes in the opener.

The crowd was not all that the promoters had figured on. In the audience I recognized all the ranking deadheads in Washington, and it is little wonder that a wag leaned over his chair and exclaimed, "Whew! What would happen if a fire broke out with all this 'paper' in the house?"

NOTICE, BETHESDA.

Favorites Continue to Win In District Tennis Tourney

Muehleisen Defeats Hunt in Straight Sets; O'Neill Ousted by Mitchell, While Robinson Eliminates Gravem, Dark Horse.

BITTER tennis playing, with pairs so evenly matched that marathon matches were the rule rather than the exception, marked the continuation of the District of Columbia's forty-fifth annual tournament yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel.

There were no great tragedies among the seeded players as the field moved into the quarter final round. Dolf Muehleisen, first seeded player, and about the best netman who has participated in the District tournament in ten years, put out Washington's tennis sensation, young Gilbert Hunt, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3, but the match produced fine rallies and Muehleisen found himself faced with a capable foe.

In one of the bitterest clashes the reigning dark horse of the tournament, Axel Gravem, a Second Ten man in 1918, was put out by Lieut. Stanley K. Robinson, champion of the United States Army, 12—10, 6—8, 9—7, one of the greatest struggles ever seen here in local competition. Added to these scores were stunning rallies, thrilling charges to the net, resounding overheads, and Gravem's "bounce-back" shots, which were beautifully played by Robinson, who rammed many of these specialties for placements.

Gravem led 5—2 in the third set, but Robinson, playing his best tennis in the fading light of the afternoon, battered through to win.

Not far behind was the match in which Gene Hermann beat Frank Shore, 6—3, 6—8, 8—6. Hermann held eight match points at 5—4 in the second set.

Dooly Mitchell had real trouble with Maurice O'Neill, the veteran Irish chopstroker, who put out Clarence Charest Sunday. O'Neill skidded his shots into Mitchell's courts with fine steadiness and now and then real speed. Mitchell squeezed through

Revenge Aim Of Schwartz Tonight

Baltimorean Confident of Beating Landers at Laurel.

By JACK ESPEY.

DETERMINED to win by a wide margin to prove an earlier defeat undeserved, Benny Schwartz, veteran Baltimore bantamweight, for the second time in two months will shoot his fistic fire tonight against Billy Landers, blond Norfolk buzz-saw, in Twin-City Arena. The bout, scheduled for eight rounds, features a 32-round program which opens at 8:30 o'clock.

Schwartz yesterday exuded confidence and, with the ever-ready verbal assistance of his manager, Goldie Ahearn, all but achieved his goal without striking a blow.

"We're gonna show the Washington public," chorused Benny and Goldie, "that Landers wasn't entitled to the decision last May in Portner's Arena. We're gonna beat that Landers so bad this time there won't be any room for doubt. All we ask is an even break as far as the officiating is concerned, and we'll do the rest. As long as the Maryland commission has charge, we expect to find judges who know the difference between a left hook and a drop kick, which is something some of the fellows who judge around here don't know."

Schwartz to Rely On Left Hand.

The left hook referred to by Schwartz & Co. is particularly relevant in the matter. Benny relies largely on his life-hand to pile up points. The little Baltimorean is a past master at the art of jabbing and hooking with the southpaw flipper. He proved this when he met Landers before, but the Norfolk boy's hard right-hand punching won the favor of Referee Charlie Short.

In all probability, the issue again will be decided on the relative merits of Schwartz's left and Landers' right. If Benny keeps his left in Billy's face and stomach, meanwhile avoiding Landers' haymaking right, the customers likely will see Benny's paw raised in victory. But if Landers connects solidly with his potent orthodox mitt, a quick finish with Schwartz on the floor is likely to result.

Both fighters are reported in the best of condition, Schwartz weighing about 119 and Landers close to 117.

Antonelli-Bruno in Return Bout.

Another return bout brings together Nick Antonelli, Mohawk Club featherweight, and Joe Bruno, Baltimore crowd-pleaser, who hook up in the eight-round semifinal. Antonelli is out to reverse an earlier decision taken by Bruno at Portsmouth, Va. This has the earmarks of a knock-down, drag-out affair.

Charley Thompson, Baltimore junior welterweight, who has defeated Sailor McKenna and Patsy Lewis and had Pete DeAngeles on the floor, tangles with Jimmy Moran, of Norfolk, over six rounds, while Billy Essinger, Washington's hard-hitting lightweight, meets K. O. Kelly, of Philadelphia, at the same distance. Billy Hooe, Mohawk Club junior welter, and Wildcat Izzy, of Baltimore, collide in the four-round opener.

Ladies escorted will be admitted free. Bus transportation will be operated on a 5-minute schedule from the Annapolis Hotel, starting at 7 p.m.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS — Schwartz to beat Landers, Bruno to beat Antonelli, Thompson to beat Moran, Essinger to beat Kelly, and Hooe to beat Izzy. (Batting .733).

New York Catcher Also Facing Fine By Harridge for Attacking Reynolds; Nats Begin Series With Indians Today

Thomas to Oppose Harder as West's Invasion Starts.

Nats See Fine Chance to Gain on Weakened Yankees.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ALL pepped up over their double victory over the Yankees Monday, the Nationals this afternoon open their second home stand against the Western clubs and have high hopes of making up some of the ground they lost last week in New York and Philadelphia. Cleveland will be the first team to show here, with Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas and Mel Harder expected to do the hurling for their respective teams today.

The absence of Outfielder Carl Reynolds, who faces a recuperation period of six weeks, more or less, as a result of the broke jaw he received at the hands of Catcher Bill Dickey, of the Yankees, in the first game of the Independence Day double header, comes as quite a blow to the home team. Although he had not been hitting consistently, he had managed to keep his record right around the .300 mark and stands fourth in driving in runs.

Rice and Harris to Play Outfield.

Then again, the Nationals have but two extra outfielders—Sam Rice and Dave Harris—and both of them will have to be used in view of the fact that Sam West is still nursing some shoulder bruises received in a collision with the fence in Philadelphia last week. West could be used in a pinch, but still is stiff and sore and in no condition to put up his normal game.

These handicaps do not appear to be worrying the Nats any. Considering that the Boston Red Sox made the league-leading Yankees give all they had to break even in Boston last week-end and their sorry showing here Monday, Manager Walter Johnson and his charges predict that the New Yorkers have "cracked" and will not hold the fast pace which enabled them to forge way out in front some time back.

As a matter of fact, the Nats are not alone in their opinion regarding the Yankees slipping, as several of the Gotham scribes here with the team voiced the same sentiments. Both Ruth and Gehrig seem to have lost their home-run range, the Babe's four-bagger here in Monday's second game being only his second in eleven games, or since June 11, while neither has been coming through in the pinches as of yore. Neither has the pitching been as good of late as earlier in the season, the New York writers declared.

Yankees to Miss Dickey.

Add to these shortcomings, the absence of Catcher Dickey, who has been indefinitely suspended for his cowardly attack on Reynolds here Monday, and the Yankees appear to be somewhat up against it. Dickey is hitting at a .332 clip and his stick did much to carry the team to the top. And, besides, his fielding ability also will be missed as Jorgens, his understudy, is way below the regular in class.

Third Baseman Ossie Bluege is not likely to play today, which means that Wes Kingdon will be on the job again. Considering the fact that the latter has never played third, being a shortstop and second baseman, his work has been good. Seeing him playing pretty far back, the Yanks took to bunting on him Monday, but Manager Johnson guarantees that he will not be out of position today.

Pitcher Fred Marberry, Infielder Buddy Myer, Outfielder Sam West and Coach Al Schacht represented the Nationals yesterday at a luncheon given by the "Sam Rice Day" committee. Following the "eats," plans for making July 19, the date decided upon, a success, were discussed. Among other things considered was a plan to have members of the Washington Team, assisted by the local sport writers, to give daily five-minute radio talks between now and the day of the game.

WILLIAM HARRIDGE.

League Head Probing Full Report of Umpires.

Both Nats and Yanks Hard Hit by Loss of Star Players.

CHICAGO, July 5 (A.P.).—Manager Joe McCarthy and his pennant-bound New York Yankees will have to struggle along indefinitely without their hard-hitting catcher, Bill Dickey.

Dickey was placed on the indefinite suspension list today by President Will Harridge of the American League for landing a jaw-breaking punch on Carl Reynolds, Washington outfielder, in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader between the Yanks and Nats.

President Harridge refused to discuss the suspension, but it was believed that Dickey would be kept out of the game at least until Reynolds recovered sufficiently to play again—possibly six weeks. A heavy fine also may be levied on him as soon as the American League president fully digests the umpires' report of the incident.

Dickey Recently Injured.

Baseball men familiar with the physical make-up of Dickey and Reynolds today called attention to the fact that Dickey only recently returned to the line-up after an injury and was enraged when Reynolds came in standing up, a tactic dangerous to a catcher. On the other hand, they explained that Reynolds suffered from weak ankles and that he had been warned to slide into bases as little as possible.

An examination revealed that Reynolds' jaw had been fractured by the blow. President Clark Griffith, of the Washington Club, demanded in a wire to President Harridge that Dickey be suspended at least until Reynolds was able to return to active duty.

Both Nats and Yanks Are Hard Hit.

Both the Nats and Yankees undoubtedly will suffer considerably from the loss of Reynolds and Dickey. The New York catcher has been one of the big spots in the Yankee drive to the pennant, catching brilliantly and batting at a .332 clip. Reynolds, obtained from the White Sox in one of the big winter deals, also was invaluable to Washington with his hitting and fielding ability.

POLO TROPHY WON, 12-8, BY CAVALRY

Beat War Whites in Final Contest for Argentine Cup.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

THIRD CAVALRY YELLOWS won a hectic polo match from the War Whites yesterday on the Potomac Park oval to gain possession of the Argentine Cup. The victors had a two-goal handicap but did not need it, the score being 12 to 8. The Whites won the cup last year.

Capt. Truscott and Lieut. Noble were the main factors in the Cavalry conquest. The former scored five goals and Lieut. Noble gave a fine exhibition at back in defensive play, besides marking up three scores.

From start to finish the game was a scene of mad galloping and wild shots at the uprights, although eighteen goals rolled off the mallets of the two teams, attesting a large degree of accuracy also.

Capt. Truscott Starts Scoring.

Capt. Truscott opened the scoring in the first period with a neat drive and his success was closely followed by a tally by Maj. Devera. Near the end of the period Truscott again scored after a hard ride half the length of the field.

Early in the second period Capt. Smith hoisted a long drive past midfield and followed up to dribble the sphere through the White uprights. The Whites staged a strong offensive at this juncture.

The third chukker was a parade for Maj. Eager. In rapid succession he scored three goals, one of which was a sensational shot from 40 yards out.

Upon the resumption of play after the half-time rest, Cavalry duplicated the Whites' performance in the third of scoring four goals. Truscott started the orgy with his specialty, a back-hand angle drive through the uprights. Noble and Smith then scored in order, and near the end of the period Truscott converted a free drive from the 40-yard mark into a score.

In the fifth, Truscott made the only goal on an easy tap, and in the final period the Whites rallied and scored twice.

After the game Senor Adolfo J. de Urquiza, first secretary of the Argentine Embassy, presented the winners with the Argentine Cup and each of the individual players received smaller trophies from the secretary. The War Blue players also received trophies for their victory in the consolation match Saturday.

YANKS NOT IN YET BY MILE, SAYS MACK

Pilot of A's Sees His Team "Moving Up From Now On."

PHILADELPHIA, July 5 (A.P.).—Connie Mack doesn't take much stock in that old baseball proverb about the team in first place on July 4 being the winner, for he declared today he looks for the law of averages and better pitching to pull the Athletics out of their slump.

Despite the fact that his team is 7½ games behind, the lean patriarch of the former world champions is not dismayed.

"Anything is liable to happen in the last half of the race," he said. "I think we will be moving upward from now on. Once every season a good team strikes a slump—a lot of accidents and general hard luck. I would like to point out that the A's have had more than their share. From now on the law of averages should favor us."

Mack Looks for Better Pitching.

However, Connie hopes that a better brand of pitching will do a lot to bolster any assistance that natural laws may afford.

"Our boys have gotten rid of some wild heaving," he continued. "Earnshaw is ready and I expect Grove to be in action this week, but he will pitch only if he has entirely recovered. I like Tony Freitas. He knows how to pitch and gives the best in him.

"The Yankees have not won this pennant by a mile. They are in for a stiff race from a team that has finally found itself."

Garibaldi Favored To Toss Grobmeier

Conqueror of Dusek Likely to Win Feature at Park Tomorrow.

Washington's second glimpse of the revamped and relentless Gino Garibaldi, former Illinois miner, will be had tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium when he tackles—and is expected to subdue—Washington fair-haired man of the mat, Fred Grobmeier.

Garibaldi thoroughly established himself last week when he beat Rudy Dusek in a match which remains about the best ever seen here in a wrestling ring. Much of the entertainment occurred outside the ring, too, for that is where the match was won, with Dusek half conscious and prone on the infield.

Garibaldi seems to have everything a modern wrestler needs. He is colorful enough to suit most tastes, has a perfectly proportioned body, is amazingly fast for a man of 210 and he can lay the elbow jabs in with the best of them. Last week he secured a cradle rock on Rudy Dusek even more potent than Rudy's cradle, which is famed far and wide. This week, to show his general all-around ability, he probably will toss Grobmeier with a figure four scissors—Grobmeier's own.

Grobmeier has never been thrown by any one besides Londos and Lewis in recent years.

Devens Loses in Debut As Orioles Beat Yanks

Baltimore, July 5 (A.P.).—Twelve hits for seven runs in five innings drove Charles Devens, New York Yankee pitcher, making his debut, from the mound today in an exhibition game with the Baltimore Orioles of the International League. Baltimore won the game, 9 to 2.

Buzz Arlett, Oriole giant left fielder, who has made 41 runs in the International League so far this season, hit for the circuit in the third inning with none on.

Burke, Georgetown Hurdle Star, Breaks Olympic 400-Meter Mark

BERKELEY, Calif., July 5 (A.P.).—Victor Burke, Georgetown University hurdle star, won his 400-meter heat in the post I. C. A. A. A. A. Olympic tryouts in Edwards Stadium here today in 53.2 seconds, clipping two-tenths of a second off the Olympic games record of 53 2-5 seconds, set in 1928 by Lord Burghley, British star.

The world record is held by the American, P. Morgan Taylor, at 52 seconds flat.

Burke, holder of the National A. A. U. 440 hurdle title, by virtue of his performance becomes eligible for the final American trials at Palo Alto July 15 and 16.

Second best time was made by Joe Healey, of New York University. Healey won the second heat in 54.2 seconds.

Today's trials were restricted to Olympic events not in the regular I. C. 4-A program, which was concluded Saturday.

PIRATES NOSE OUT GIANTS BY 4 TO 3

Add to League Lead as Swift Bests Walker on Hill.

PITTSBURGH, July 5 (A.P.).—The Pirates, gathering class and confidence with each new day at the head of the National League race, fought ten innings today to beat out the New York Giants, 4 to 3, in the first of a six-game series.

Bill Swift, youthful right-hander, not only went the route to best Bill Walker in a fine mound duel, but delivered the winning run with a single after two were out in the tenth. It was Swift's seventh victory against three defeats.

The victory placed the Pirates two full games ahead of the second place Boston Braves, who were idle.

Ring Radio Critics Must Be "Experts"

Only Sport Writers, Officials, to Broadcast, New York Solons Rule.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—As an outgrowth of controversy arising from Jack Sharkey's defeat of Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship, the New York State Athletic Commission today barred any but "boxing experts" from broadcasting descriptions of future matches here.

The commission defined as boxing experts, "sports writers, referees or judges."

The radio description broadcast by Charles Francis Coe, novelist, and Graham McNamee, announcer, indicated Schmeling had a wide margin of points over Sharkey. Although a majority of the critics at the ringside also gave Schmeling an edge in the battling, and the vote of two judges and Referee Gunboat Smith was not unanimous, the decision was favorably received by many spectators and approved by the boxing commission.

Eastman Seeks Trial Only at 400 Meters

San Francisco, July 5 (A.P.)—Although Ben Eastman, Stanford University's great middle distance runner, is considered an outstanding prospect in the 400 meters and 800 meters for the American Olympic games team, he will compete only over the shorter distance during the final trials at Stanford, July 15 and 16.

This was reiterated today by R. L. Templeton, track coach at Stanford. Eastman is an applicant for new world's records in the 440-yard dash and 880-yard and 880-meters runs. Because of his record, coach Templeton feels the American track and field committee should arbitrarily select Eastman as a competitor in one of these races at the coming games in Los Angeles.

RED WHISK RETURNS TO BEST FORM TO WIN AT ARLINGTON

Jones Scores Easily With Favorite

Clarify, Poppyman Run Two, Three After Setting Pace.

Plumage Leads From Start to Score at Latonia.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 5 (A.P.).—C. C. Vanmeter's Red Whisk came back in his best form today and easily captured the River Forest Purse by three and one-half lengths. Clarify was second and Poppyman finished third in the 5½-furlong dash.

Jockey R. Jones rode a good race on the winner. Laying off the early pace set by Clarify and Poppyman, the victor, although compelled to circle his field, easily drew away from his rivals in the dash down the stretch.

Red Whisk was favorite and ran the distance in 1:05 4-5. The winner paid $6.46 to win.

Plumage Likes Mud At Latonia.

Latonia, Ky., July 5 (A.P.).—Showing a pronounced liking for the sloppy footing, Racing Commissioner S. S. Combs' Plumage led throughout to account for the Delhi Purse, mile and a sixteenth offering, which featured today's card. H. H. Temple's recently acquired Brass Monkey finished second, and A. J. Stalling's Royal Sport came again to get the show.

Plumage, a 4-year-old daughter of Ballot and Glyn, was a warm favorite with the small off-da crowd, rewarding at $5.02. She covered the distance in 1:49 2-5, fair time considering the miserable condition of the track.

Merry Caroline Wins as Aqueduct Closes.

Aqueduct Race Track, July 5 (A.P.). The Long Island summer season was concluded here today with the Queens County Jockey Club offering a well balanced jet-away card. The Pete Pan Purse, 5-furlong dash for 2-year-olds, was the most attractive event and resulted in Mrs. T. W. Anderson's Merry Caroline rewarding the talent.

The daughter of Carlaris was ridden out to beat the Belair Stud's Flamborough by a length and a half. White Thorn, representing Mrs. J. H. Whitney, was a like distance away in third position.

Merry Caroline paid 11 to 20. The time was 0:59 2-5.

McCafferty, Ex-Jockey, Kills Self at Age of 74

Havre de Grace, Md., July 5 (A.P.). John J. McCafferty, 74, former jockey on New York and Chicago tracks and later trainer and owner of race horses, committed suicide here today.

He was found dead in his bed at the Colonial Hotel with a bullet wound in his right temple and a pistol beside him. Coroner Joseph Hamburger gave a verdict of suicide. He had been in ill health for several weeks.

McCafferty was the trainer of Helen Nichols, which won fifty stakes at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., and other races during the late 80's. Recently he raced his own string of horses, which included Vice Chairman and Destrose, on the smaller Maryland tracks and in Cuba.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code) —By Ken Kling

After hitting four straight winners including La Feria at $11.32 Monday, Asbestos' horse ran second yesterday. The other was scratched. He only lost $1 and the bank roll is $65.50. Today he is playing some at Canada that nobody ever heard of. Let's wish the Sap luck. The code is at Arlington: 11, 3, 18, 18, 25, 7, 8.

AT THE POST

—with Bill Bennings—

ARLINGTON PARK, CHICAGO, JULY 5.

DEAR AL:

You should be sitting pretty tonight. I started you off with Mintogee in the first at 7 to 1. You couldn't have lost on Flying Home in the next if you played him across the board. The third race I called one, two and on down the line I was calling them in the money. For the sixth and seventh, gave you Gabbo and Englewood, both at 3 to 1 and winners.

They look tough tomorrow, especially the first and last races. Better not play these but cast your eagle eye on a few that I have at other tracks: Nituma, Madelon, Manya and Blenheim. Yours,

BILL.

FIRST RACE—If there is anything worth while in the "field" and you must play this race, try the "field." The affair is a maiden scramble for 2-year-old fillies. FLYING D'S, MONKS STAR and MONKS BELA are as good as any.

SECOND RACE—FIDDLER, this way rigged, beat the same lot by a neck at 6 furlongs. GRAND PRINCE carries 3 pounds less and should be second, while GIFT OF ROSES may last to grab show money.

THIRD RACE—MR. JOE may develop into a real star. He seems the stand-out wager of the day. LLANDAFF and OLD HILLSIDE for what's left.

FOURTH RACE—Here's one at a mile with seven entries, any one of which has a good chance to win. I am stringing with WAR SAINT. His recent win shows his return to form. MORSEL and YONKEL will be battling it out with the balance of the field.

FIFTH RACE—FALL APPLE made an auspicious debut here and may win tomorrow. The clouds are hanging low in Chi tonight and, should the going become sloppy, I think I SAY will go to the front and stay there. CRYSTAL PRINCE may show.

SIXTH RACE—UPRIGHT will have WILLIAM T. to trim while the none-too-consistent JEAN LAFITTE should battle it out with COME ON for third place.

SEVENTH RACE—Another race worth taking a chance on the "field." If looking for a long shot, I hear JUST ORMONT will be doing his best. LADRONE will be awakened soon and tomorrow may be the day. OUR PAL may be in the money—and at a price—while Bobby Jones may ride one of his good races and lift VERMAJO under the wire. You need not try to beat the entire card.

106 Tee Off Tomorrow In Canadian Open Golf

Ottawa, July 5 (A.P.).—Led by Walter Hagen, the defending champion, 106 of the leading golfers of the North American Continent will tee off Thursday for the first round of the 72-hole medal play leading to the Canadian open golf championship.

Gene Sarazen, winner of the United States and British open titles, is the only outstanding player missing from the draw of 85 professionals and 21 amateurs made today. Sarazen has announced his intention of staying out of major competition until the United States professional championship.

Despite the absence of Sarazen the invading contingent from south of the border line is as imposing as ever. Leo Diegel is returning in quest of his fourth Canadian championship.

5TH AREA SALES LED BY CAPITAL STORES

Washington's Loss Under May, 1931, Is About Half That of Richmond.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Local retail department stores again suffered less than those of other cities of the Fifth Federal Reserve District, the monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions in this district by Chairman and Federal Reserve Agent William W. Hoxton of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond indicates.

While May sales in the District were 12.6 per cent lower than those of the month last year, those of Richmond stores showed a 23.6 per cent decline in the comparison; those of Baltimore a 16.2 per cent decrease; those of other cities of the district a 23.2 per cent recession and those of the entire district were 17.2 per cent off.

District of Columbia sales for the first five months of 1932 were 14 per cent behind those of the corresponding period a year ago. Those of Richmond stores were 19.2 per cent below and those of Baltimore were 18.8 per cent off in the comparison.

Other Cities.

Sales of stores of other cities in the district reflected a slump of 24.3 per cent and those of the District were 17.5 per cent under the period in 1931.

Election of Oscar J. Bernstein as president of the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants for the administrative year beginning July 1 and ending June 30, 1933, was announced yesterday following the annual meeting at the Racquet Club. Other officers elected were Wayne Kendrick, vice president, and Goodwin P. Graham, secretary-treasurer. The latter presided over a round-table discussion on current topics of accounting and finance.

At the business session, James B. Grice, retiring president, reviewed the institute's activities for the past administrative year. The meeting was concluded with a dinner, music and entertainment.

Miniature Plane Exhibit.

An exhibit of miniature airplanes in the lobby of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.'s main office at Fourteenth and G streets northwest, is creating much interest.

The planes in the exhibit are from a scale-model contest held in the aircraft building of the National Museum May 12-16. It has been held there annually for three years. The contest was organized by Miss Sybil Baker, superintendent of playgrounds of the District of Columbia, and P. E. Garber, curator, aircraft division, National Museum. It is held under the direction of the District of Columbia Model Aircraft League and sponsored by the Community Center section of the Department of Playgrounds.

The Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. is awarding 85 savings accounts to the three leaders in the exhibit and other savings accounts to other exhibitors. It is holding the show to encourage public interest in development of boys and their talents.

GOVERNMENT BONDS LEAD PRICE ADVANCE

Foreign Loans Make Wide Gains; Domestic Issues Hold Steady.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Sustained buying appeared today in United States and foreign government obligations which imparted a cheerful tone to the bond market. Domestic corporation issues were steady but rather featureless.

Gains in the foreign list were widespread, with German government bonds running up 2 to over 4 points. Prussian Free State securities were up more than 6 points. German 7s soared 4¾ and the 5½s gained 5¼. Berlin and other German municipals were also buoyant.

Australian government securities were in brisk demand. New South Wales bonds rallying more than 6 points.

International bankers attributed this performance to belief that the Lausanne conference, regardless of the rapidly shifting nature of reports, would contribute some measure of hope for an eventual settlement of present debt problems. They also felt the firmness of European loans here represented, in part, belated buying for European account, for the New York market was closed on Monday when these bonds advanced briskly in London.

U. S. Government loans were uniformly higher, gains varying from 1-32 to 15-32 point. The Liberty 3½s went to a new high for the year. Investment bankers reported that considerable money was now finding itself into the tax-exempt field. The quick oversubscription of the $16,000,000 Federal Intermediate Credit Bank offerings was accepted as an indication of this.

Transactions totaled $9,813,000, par value.

Madison Square Garden Net Drops to $130,725

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—Madison Square Garden Corporation today reported net income of $130,725 for the year ended May 31. This is equivalent to 42 cents a share on the capital stock, and compares with net of $338,968, or $1.08 a share in the previous fiscal year.

The figures do not include operations of Boston Madison Square Garden Corporation, which had net income of $[illegible]206 for the period, contrasted with loss of $83,450 for the preceding year.

2 More Counties Plan Road Vote

York and Botetourt Are to Hold Elections With Twelve Others,

Richmond, Va., July 5 (A.P.).—Information from York and Botetourt Counties today raised to fourteen the list known to have requested an election August 9 on the question of exempting themselves from operation of the Byrd road plan.

Official notice that an election had been ordered in York County was received by State Highway Commissioner H. G. Shirley today, but a question as to its legality remained because the order was dated June 1, whereas the act providing for the elections did not become effective until June 21.

Other formal notices received by the highway commissioner are from Arlington, Fairfax, Chesterfield, Henrico and Northampton Counties. In addition to these, informal notice has been received here of elections to be held in Mechlenburg, Stafford, Nottoway, James City, Warwick, Lunenburg, New Kent and Botetourt Counties.

GLASSFORD RAPPED BY HOUSE MEMBER

Bowman Accuses Police Head of 'Rank Inefficiency' in Handling Traffic.

"Rank inefficiency" in police administration of traffic ordinances was charged yesterday by Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, in a letter to Police Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby.

He declared police mishandling of traffic prevented him from keeping an engagement at the District building and forced him to continue an "exasperating joyride lasting for 1 hour 40 minutes."

Directing his shafts at Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford, Representative Bowman said:

"A little more thought to matters of this kind instead of arresting an innocent panhandler for seeking alms, and entering into a friendly altercation with two members of his own force for violation of the parking rules for publicity, will remedy the situation.

"The District of Columbi expects the superintendent to render efficient service, and it is not expected to tolerate cheap vaudeville stunts for publicity purposes."

Detailing his experiences in trying to reach the District Building, with detours forced by police at various intersections, Mr. Bowman charged a lack of cooperation between Metropolitan and Park police forces.

"Not a single notice or sign was erected anywhere for the direction of traffic," he said, "and all traffic officers south of Pennsylvania avenue were directing traffic southward and all officers north of Pennsylvania avenue were directing traffic northward. The mobilization of the B. E. F. can not be an excuse nor urged as a defense of the inefficient manner in which traffic was being handled."

He said "responsibility of the traffic conditions today rests entirely upon the superintendent of police," adding:

"Washington is so blessed with many avenues, streets and lanes that only incompetency would permit such a traffic condition as existed in Washington this morning."

Lester said he watched the bandits open the till and scoop out its contents, $47.35. They pocketed the money, he said, and fled toward Union Station. It was some time, Lester related, before he could free himself and summon aid.

VETERAN PREVENTS SHOOTING IN FIGHT

Former Sailor Wrests Gun From One of Combatants at Union Station.

A hand-to-hand struggle over a gun—the climax of a gambling argument—last night came to an end when a member of the bonus army here parted the combatants, two Negroes, and helped bystanders hold the men until police arrived.

The affair began and ended on Union Station Plaza near the main entrance to the depot. The men engaged in the altercation were David Simms, 37, and Benny Caldwell, 36. The peacemaker, who was nearly shot himself, is Charles Hession, 33, of New York City, who served in the Navy during the war and is a former member of the New York police force.

Taxicab drivers helped Hession subdue the men. One shot was fired just before the former sailor intervened and wrested the weapon away from Caldwell. Simms received a slight flesh wound in his left hand. Caldwell was treated for face lacerations at Emergency Hospital. Both men were held for investigation at the First Precinct Station.

Hession was lost from friends during the confusion and was loaned carfare by reporters so that he might report back to Camp Marks in Anacostia where he is billeted.

Kenneth Jones awakened early yesterday and went to play in front of his home at 1669 Wisconsin avenue northwest. He found a huge firecracker lying in the street. It had no fuse, so Kenneth returned home and went into the kitchen, where his mother was preparing breakfast. The gas stove was lighted and Kenneth placed the cracker on one of the burners.

A terrific explosion resounded throughout the house. The boy was discovered lying badly burned beside the stove. At the hospital it was found he suffered first-degree burns to his head, face, arms and legs. His condition is not thought to be serious.

LAW GROUP WARNED IN ROGERS' ADDRESS

U. S. Official Decries Tendency to Specialize; League Will Visit Hoover.

Increasing tendency on the part of lawyers to specialize may rob the legal profession of the prominent position it holds in the United States, James Grafton Rogers, Assistant Secretary of State, warned more than 500 lawyers and laymen attending the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Commercial Law League of America, a Wardman Park Hotel last night.

Mr. Rogers advocated a return to some of the pioneer spirit in the practice of law, and described some of the great lawyers of the past century as examples of the wide breadth of horizon the legal profession can command. Among the lawyers whose careers he summarized were Pinkney, Webster, David Dudley Field, Coolidge Carter, John Randolph Tucker and Elihu Root.

The Assistant Secretary of State reported a growing tendency on the part of the young law students to seek some other field for apprenticeship than the large cities. He said that many of these young men are asking, "Where can I find an old-fashioned law career?"

The address of Mr. Rogers was preceded by a reception at which Frank W. Stonecipher, president of the league, and Mrs. Stonecipher, received the delegates and their wives. The morning and afternoon were devoted to reports of committees.

This morning the lawyers will visit Mount Vernon, Arlington Cemetery and other shrines. They will have a photograph taken with President Hoover on the White House lawn at 12:30 p. m. A business session will be held this afternoon, to be followed by a meeting tonight at which William B. Burruss will speak on "Shakespeare, the Salesman." Dancing will be held after the meeting on the hotel terrace.

Women attending the convention will be greeted by Mrs. Hoover at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. A dinner will be held tomorrow night. The convention will adjourn on Friday.

Attorneys Are Confused Over New Patent Fees

Patent attorneys in Washington and throughout the country are confused concerning the bill recently signed by the President to increase the fees for patents, it was learned yesterday. Phraseology of the act has left a doubt as to whether it will become effective 30 or 60 days after its enactment.

Many attorneys have contracted cases on the basis of the former filing fee of $25, and they wish sufficient time to prepare and file those cases at the Patent Office before the $30 fee becomes effective. The bill also requires an increase from $25 to $30 in the final fee and a charge of $10 for the revival of an abandoned application for a patent.

Trio Answer Description of Chastleton Market Thieves.

Three men, answering the description of the trio who Monday night held up and robbed the Chastleton Market Co., 1700 Seventeenth street northwest, last night forced the proprietor of a grocery store at 2006 Florida avenue northwest to surrender $25 from his cash drawer.

Nick Caparell, proprietor of the store, told police the men entered shortly after 10 o'clock and made a number of purchases. One of the men, he said, suddenly drew a gun and demanded money. While he was held at the point of a pistol, Caparell declared, the other two rifled the till. The men escaped after warning him not to move.

The actions of the men were similar to those of the trio of Monday night's robbery. Fred Neam, manager of the market company, was robbed of more than $200. A customer was also held at bay by the three men.

AMERICAN HISPANIC CONFERENCE OPENED

Prof. Wilgus Sees U. S. Latin Policy Influenced by College Studies.

Tracing the growth of Hispanic-American studies in the universities of the United States, Dr. A. Curtis Wilgis, associate professor of Hispanic-American history in the George Washington University, opening the university's conference on Hispanic-American affairs, asserted in his lecture yesterday morning that these studies eventually will have a powerful influence on the foreign policy of the United States and may lead to the modification of the Monroe doctrine to such an extent that it will become definitely localized to the Caribbean area.

In this country there have been three distinct policies toward Latin-America, Dr. Wilgus said. These are 1: The Monroe Doctrine, which is mainly concerned with the prevention of European interference and for which today there is no longer a necessity; 2: Pan-Americanism, which seeks to exercise an influence which though friendly is regarded as dangerously paternalistic by Latin Americans; 3: Imperialism, which now openly stands for economic domination of Hispanic America by the United States. A fourth policy, which should be promoted in this country, Dr. Wilgus declared, is intellectual cooperation; i. e., a definite effort on the part of the peoples of northern and southern continents to understand one another and to work together.

The general public does not recognize, the speaker said, that the Monroe doctrine, as at present understood, is not at all as originally stated. Since its adoption more than 100 years ago, corollaries have been engrafted upon it, giving it an increasingly imperialistic trend, he pointed out.

The conference, which is a special feature of the university's summer sessions, will continue tomorrow with Prof. S. G. Inman, of Columbia University, as speaker.

Receiver Plea Entered For Bieber-Kaufman

A dissolution of the Bieber-Kaufman, Inc., of 743 Eighth street southeast, was sought in District Supreme Court yesterday by Isador Kaufman, president, and holder of a majority of the stock of the company. The company has $50,000 capital stock.

Through George E. Edelin and Theodore Peyser, attorneys, Mr. Kaufman said a number of creditors had been threatening to take action, and, he said, in the best interests of all it would be better to dissolve the company. He asked that, pending a report of the Supreme Court auditor, a receiver be appointed to run the business. The auditor will make a finding as to the debts and assets and report to the court.

Boy Cheats Grim Reaper After Bullet Threatens Life

Odds of 100-to-1 for his life were just a fighting chance for 13-year-old Joseph McCrone, of 1610 Trinidad avenue northeast.

At Casualty Hospital yesterday his fighting chance had conquered the odds and the critical bullet wound from which he was dying just three weeks ago.

The youth was wounded by another boy who fired a rifle bullet, penetrating his abdomen. At the hospital an emergency operation was performed, and when it was over physicians despaired that he would live.

However, a fighting spirit and his youthful body overcame the odds against him. Soon he will be able to leave the hospital.

The boy who fired the shot was released from the Receiving Home a few days ago. He had been held because of McCrone's critical condition.

Worker in Open Manhole Hurt by Fall of Jaywalker

Henry Hutchinson, an employe of the Capital Traction Co., received a surprise yesterday—to say nothing of numerous lacerations and bruises.

Hutchinson was at work in a manhole near Fourteenth and T streets northwest. The top of the hole was open, guarded by a big red flag. Things were going smoothly and Hutchinson was whistling at his work.

Suddenly something happened. Hutchinson was pinned to the bottom of the hole by a heavy weight on his back. He began to struggle. The object on his back also began to struggle.

A passerby, hearing the commotion, summoned Policeman C. E. Brant, of the Second Precinct. Brant reached into the hole and pulled out Joseph Quinn, colored, 51 years old, of 2221 Thirteenth street northwest. Quinn explained he fell into the hole while crossing the street. Hutchinson controlled his wrath and returned to his work unmindful of several cuts and bruises.
